The Holland Society of Ulster Dines and Hears Distinguished Speakers

Ulster Branch Holds Annual Event at Hotel Stayvassat Saturday With Vice Consul of Netherlands as Guest of Honor.

OTHER SPEAKERS

President of Parent Society Also Speaks—Mayor Heiselman Welcomes Group at Dinner.

Jollity and good fellowship reigned supreme at the annual banquet of the Ulster County Branch of the Holland Society of New York held Saturday evening at the Stayvassat Hotel at which Mayor C. J. Heiselman, one of the speakers of the evening, advanced the suggestion that some kind of an organization be formed, not to exploit, but to bring to the attention of the rest of the world the magnificent scenery and the historic past of Kingston and Ulster county. The guests of honor were A. J. D. Streenstra, T. A. van der Meer, vice consul of the Netherlands at New York, and John DeCamp Van Ethen, president of the Holland Society of New York, and the treasurer, Arthur R. Wendel.

The Dutch colonists who founded Kingston were noted for their hospitality and their descendants lived up to the tradition set by their ancestors at the reception held at the hotel preceding the serving of the annual dinner, and later at the dinner itself. The annual dinner Saturday evening proved one of the outstanding social functions of the year, and it proved more than just a social function for it brought together men who were widely known in all walks of life in Ulster county.

The reception was held in a suite of rooms on the second floor of the hotel, and here gathered the members of the society and their invited guests for an hour of good fellowship together. Later to the strains of a stirring march played on the piano by Sam Scudder, well known Wall street jeweler, the members and friends were ushered into the main dining room where the following fine menu was served.

Shrimp Cocktail
Queen, Olives
Chicken Bouillon
Hutspot
Stuffed Roast Duck, Apple Sauce
Mashed Potatoes
New Green Beans
Cauliflower
Hot Rolls
Waldorf Salad
Gouda Cheese
S-Gravenhage Sherbet
Assorted Cakes
Coffees
Mints
Cigarettes

Bruyn Presided
Following the serving of the dinner William E. Bruyn of Bruyns, president of the Ulster County Branch, presided as toastmaster, and extended the welcome of the society to the invited guests present, and then spoke briefly on the activities of the society, which was formed solely for social intercourse between its members, and had no political affiliations whatsoever. Last year when he became president the society numbered 35 members, and during the year five new members had been added and there were now five new applications being considered.

Those Eligible
The fact was brought out that in order to be eligible to membership in the Holland Society the proposed member had to be able to trace his ancestry by male descent from a Dutch colonist in this country who had located here prior to 1675.

John DeCamp Van Ethen, president of the Holland Society in New York, spoke briefly and said that the society needed younger men to take up the work which had been carried on by the older men in the organization. He said that the Ulster County Branch was the most active branch in the society which was probably due to the fact that the ancestors of the members had first landed in what was now Kingston in 1660.

Vice Consul Speaks
Vice Consul T. A. van der Meer of the Netherlands at New York, brought the greetings of Holland to the society. He said that the Holland Society was organized to promote good will between the old country and the new. He said that the reason so many in this country were pro-Holland was because Holland had so few enemies in the world.

Mayor Heiselman's Idea
Mayor Heiselman said that it was fitting for the city of Kingston to welcome the membership of the Holland Society for the city owed much to the early Dutch settlers who carved a home out of the wilderness, and it was due to the conservatism of the Dutch ancestry of Kingston that the city during the dark days of the depression had been ready to conserve its resources, and had today the county of Ulster had no bonded indebtedness and the city of Kingston was almost as equally fortunate. Kingston and Ulster county had always been known as conservative, but had built steadily on the foundations laid down by the early Dutch, and as a result the county that had been built had not been toppled by the winds of depression.

The mayor said that he had had a white ribbon prize for this old Colonial city during the past week.

13 Black Legion Men Ordered To Stand Trial for Slaying And Kidnaping of C.A. Poole

Common Pleas Judge Issues Command on Both Counts Today Following Arguments by Attorney General That Case is Same as Holdup Conspiracy—Life Imprisonment Possible Under Michigan Law—Senator Benson Proposes $100,000 Appropriation to Investigate Black Legion in the United States.

Great Britain Fails To Pay Its War Debt

Washington, June 8 (AP).—Great Britain defaulted today on its semi-annual war debt installment to the United States.

In doing so it advised this government that inability to pay was due to reasons "no less valid now" than when it first suspended all payments in 1934.

Future notice that Britain did not intend to pay the $668,474,071 installment falling due on June 15 was contained in a note transmitted to Secretary Hull by Sir Ronald Lindsay, the British ambassador.

Eleven other nations are generally expected to follow a similar course. Secretary Hull only a few days ago said he had received no indication that any of the debtor nations except Finland intended to pay. Finland, which owes one of the smallest amounts, is the only country which has not defaulted on its war obligations to the United States.

Of the sum due from Britain, $85,670,765 represents the regular June 15 installment of principal and interest and the remainder the amount previously due and unpaid.

In suspending all payments on June 4, 1934, the British government explained this was due to economic conditions prevailing at that time in England, combined with the fact that reparation payments from Germany had been halted.

Schryver Had Narrow Escape When Plane Hit Telephone Wires

William C. Schryver, local lumber dealer, and aviation enthusiast, had a narrow escape Sunday afternoon at the Kingston airport, across the Washington avenue viaduct, riding in the Monocoupe of Gunther Wallens of Armonk, Westchester county.

Wallens, demonstrating his plane to Schryver, about 3 o'clock, struck the telephone wires on the Sawkill road side of the airport, ripping them down and forcing the plane to nosedive while close to the ground. Expert manipulation of the ship by Wallens, however, averted a crash that might have meant death to him and Schryver.

It was said by Wallens that he was traveling about 60 miles an hour when he struck the wires with the under-carriage of his plane. The ship's nose dipped from the impact, but Wallens speeded up his engine and started to climb again. The wires snapped, but loosened the under-carriage of the plane.

Landing with a faulty under-carriage was a problem for Pilot Wallens, but he brought the ship down without injuring his passenger. Both men were badly shaken, however, when the landing gear tumbled completely, as it contacted the ground, and the ship bumped along for a distance.

Bert Knauth, who operates the Kingston Flying Service, said Mr. Schryver stepped out of the plane as calmly as if nothing had happened, seemingly considering the incident as just another aviation thrill.

Wallens took a ship from the airport and flew back to Armonk to procure parts for his ship, the damage on which he did not estimate.

244 New Companies
Albany, N. Y., June 8 (AP).—Secretary of State Edward J. Flynn reported today that 244 new companies were chartered last month in 26 upstate counties breaking all upstate records for a single month in the last three years. Westchester, with 45, had the most new companies. Erie had 30, Nassau 23, Monroe 24 and Albany 13. The total upstate new capitalization was $2,490,480. During May 1,404 new companies were formed, totaling $4,444,444.44. The April mark by 24 and equalling the May, 1935 figure. Flynn said of these 425 were capitalized at $14,940,400, exceeding the May 1935 average by $2,000,000.

Treasury Receipts
Washington, June 8 (AP).—The position of the Treasury June 5: Receipts, $17,431,955.44; expenditures, $17,276,468.54; net balance, $152,486.90; customs receipts for the month, $4,444,444.44. Receipts for the fiscal year (April-July 31), $2,451,728,374.94; expenditures, $2,444,227,277.22, including $2,104,624,912.22 of emergency expenditures. Excess of expenditures, $247,146,102.72. Gross debt, $11,674,124,241.34, a decrease of $294,514.25 under the previous day. Gold features, including a semi-design issue, $11,422,552,720.77.

Detroit, June 8 (AP).—Thirteen men charged with the Black Legion kidnaping and "execution" of Charles A. Poole were ordered held for trial today on both counts by Common Pleas Judge Ralph W. Liddy.

The judge had announced earlier that he was convinced all 13 should be held for trial on the kidnaping charge, but that there was some question in his mind whether all of them also should be tried for murder.

Among the 13 are Dayton Dean, Black Legion executioner who voluntarily testified last week that he had emptied two revolvers into the body of the young WPA worker "because I was supposed to do it," and Harvey Davis, Black Legion officer from whom Dean said he took his orders.

The judge said he was in some doubt whether all of the 13 also should be held for trial on murder charges, and asked for arguments on that point.

"The facts show each and every one of the defendants starting out for the scene of the slaying," Prosecutor Duncan O. McCrea said. "The facts are established that they went out to kill him. Did anyone try to whip him? No. They said 'You have beaten your wife for the last time,' and they killed him. They did not intend to whip him but to kill him."

Attorney General David H. Crowl also argued that the entire group should be held without bond for trial on murder and kidnap charges.

Comparable to Conspiracy
"This case is comparable to a conspiracy of a group of men to commit a holdup," he said. "If, during the holdup, someone is killed, then all the men in that conspiracy are equally guilty of murder."

Crowl pointed out that both kidnaping and murder are punishable under Michigan law by life imprisonment.

The defense argued that at least some of the defendants were not aware Poole was to be slain, either by the fusillade of pistol bullets which Dayton Dean has confessed he fired into Poole's body "because I was supposed to," or by a "necktie party" which McCrea charges was originally planned.

Defense counsel also contended the state had not shown that the men conspired against Poole, and when McCrea replied that he was not charging them with conspiracy, a recess was taken for a review of the testimony given last week before the examination was adjourned until today.

Resolution Introduced
Washington, June 8 (AP).—A resolution to create an eight-member congressional committee to investigate the Black Legion was introduced today by Senator Benson (R-Minn.).

Benson proposed a $100,000 appropriation for the inquiry and that the committee consist of four senators and four representatives.

The investigation would examine "the character, objects, extension of operations, roster of officers and membership, all sources of revenue, purposes and methods of distribution of finances of the 'Black Legion'."

It also would look into the activities and sources of revenue of any organizations "spreading similar American propaganda."

House concurrence in the resolution would be required to make it effective.

INJURED WHEN AUTO RUNS OFF HIGHWAY
Losing control of his car, when it ran off the shoulder of the state highway at Highland, shortly after midnight last night, Henry Blatter, 52, and his wife, Lavina, 52, of Montreal, Can., were injured, but not seriously, when the machine ended up against a pole.

The two were thrown against the dash of the car with considerable force when the auto crashed against the pole, and were shaken and bruised. A passing motorist took them to Tuxedo Hospital, Poughkeepsie.

Junior C. of C. Meeting
The Kingston Junior Chamber of Commerce will meet in the Governor Clinton Hotel Tuesday evening, June 9, at 7:24 o'clock. Members are urged to be on time so that the evening's business may be transacted without delay. Following the regular club meeting, the Board of Directors of the Junior Chamber will meet for a short session.

Endowment H. L. launched
Governor, Hon. June 8 (AP).—T. O. McSwiggan, new class 3 architect, said today the endowment would be launched in the New England and Canadian coast, starting in July on the schooner Swallow.

150,000 French Miners Call Strike Today After Million Win Demands

Paris Building Trade Workers Also Begin Walkout to Enforce 5-Point Program; New Strength for Franc.

FIVE DEMANDS
Included in Demands Won are Wages, Recognition of Rights, 40-Hour Week, Vacations.

Paris, June 8 (AP).—Coal miners in northern France numbering 150,000 called a general strike today a few hours after 1,000,000 other workers had won a complete victory in the "folded arms" refusal to work.

Workers in Paris building trades also began a walkout to enforce the five point agreement which ended the 14-day strike after Premier Leon Blum's "new deal" government intervened for organized labor.

The coal miners, who declared they would rather "strike and starve than work and starve," occupied pits and offices in the northern fields. In some places mining officials were held prisoner in their buildings but leaders of the miners' union quickly ordered their release.

The government's declaration against evaluation brought new strength to the franc at the opening of the market.

The labor agreement which brought some workers back to their jobs was described as "one of the great proletarian victories in the French history."

Takes on New Life
At Rouen, too, the strike movement took on new life with a deadlock in local arbitration. Approximately 1,600 coalworkers, weavers, dyers and paper makers were involved. Other thousands struck at Garentin and Pavilly, textile centers north of Rouen.

A strike at Dunkerque closed docks, shipyards, and canal.

Union representatives announced the strike and the workers immediately responded by closing the iron gates, blocking off the docks. About 2,000 bargemen blocked the canal with their boats, closing it to all navigation.

In other districts, however, strikers went back to work. Thousands more were expected to return to work before the end of the day.

Labor won five demands:

Wage increases from 7 to 15 per cent.

Recognition of workers' rights to organize in unions.

Collective bargaining contracts.

A 40-hour work week.

Annual vacations with pay.

Under pressure from the people's front government, which inherited the strike from the outgoing Saragut regime, the employers signed the agreement but warned they made "all reserves regarding economic consequences."

The only group excluded from the general agreement were "white collar" workers—amiralty—but Blum called on arbitration conferences under the sponsorship of the government to end their difficulties today.

Walkout Averted
A walkout of bank clerks was averted by the labor settlement and the institutions remained open. Department stores, whose doors had been blocked by pickets, were still unable to make sales as their employees are not members of the General Confederation of Labor.

Roger Salengo, minister of the interior, said strikers will receive no punishment for their actions, and wage increases will be made effective as soon as work is resumed. By mutual agreement, the "open shop" principle was retained.

The end of the strike signalled the first victory of the new socialist government which took over extraordinary powers in the first hours of its tenure. Blum and his ministers continued to work on new measures to bolster the sagging financial situation and to revitalize national defense.

Leftist newspapers celebrated the strike's end but rightist publications countered with misgivings the country would be unable to stand the strain of higher wages and shorter hours.

Landonites Confident, Borah Equally Sure Nothing Settled On Eve of Cleveland Battle

Negotiations are Under Way to Prevent Breach of Sentiment From Developing Into Battle on Floor of Convention.

BORAH ARRIVES
Issues of Gold Standard and Wage Amendment Threaten Trouble; Borah in Opposition.

Cleveland, June 8 (AP).—Back stage negotiations were under way today to prevent a widening breach of sentiment over the Republican platform from developing into a battle on the floor of the national convention.

With Senator Borah arriving, his emphatic views were thrust into the maelstrom of conflicting opinion already swirling about proposed monetary and constitutional planks.

Even before he left Washington, the Idaho candidate for the presidential nomination spoke out against proposals to pledge the party to a return to the gold standard and a constitutional amendment to permit state legislation on minimum wages.

Both these issues threatened trouble for the platform maker. But they had plenty of other worries over such controversial problems as farm relief, the tariff, and administration of unemployment relief.

Center of the platform negotiations was the headquarters of Gov. Alf Landon, of Kansas, the leading candidate for the presidential nomination. But platforms, and proposals for planks, were circulating in every hotel lobby. Almost every delegate had one in his pocket.

Strong Support
Strong support for a plank advocating a constitutional amendment on the minimum wage question came from the Landon camp. Sympathy with the suggestion was expressed by former President Hoover, on route here.

In some other quarters it found much outspoken opposition. Senators Vandenberg, of Michigan, Dickinson, of Iowa, and Borah, all presidential possibilities, were critical.

Eastern Republicans were somewhat divided on the issues. Former Senator David Reed, Pennsylvania's member of the platform committee, said he would "earnestly oppose" such a plank. But former Senator Wadsworth of New York, said he would view the suggestion sympathetically, even though he was not a strong believer in minimum wage legislation.

Reed said he would urge repeal of the President's power to adjust the gold content of the dollar and advocate a return to the gold standard. Reed agreed that to restore the dollar to its "pre-Roosevelt" value would cause "immense difficulty" but advocated immediate stabilization at its present level with the dollar exchangeable for gold.

This course was bitterly opposed by Borah. He said it would injure the agricultural interests more than anything else could. The Landon monetary plank was closely guarded, but there were hints it also would call for repeal of the President's authority to adjust the value of the dollar.

Many other Republican leaders spoke for this. But some, such as former Senator Hiram Bingham, Connecticut's member of the platform committee, did not advocate immediate return to a redeemable gold standard.

Vandenberg Policy
Senator Vandenberg said he would stabilize the dollar on a bullion basis, which would tie it to the monetary standard but not require the government to redeem every paper dollar in gold.

There were unofficial reports that the Landonites were drafting a plank denouncing the pending New Deal tax plan as a blow at small business. Presentation of a plank assailing denunciation of crops or livestock was considered likely. It would be in line with the often-expressed views of several presidential possibilities, including Senators Borah, Vandenberg and Dickinson.

There was still no final word today as to who would head the all-important platform committee. Former Senator Thomas of Idaho, was again being mentioned, but was reluctant to accept.

William Allen White, Emporia editor, was the Kansas member of the committee but Landon supporters said he did not want the chairmanship.

Borah Arrives
Cleveland, June 8 (AP).—Senator Borah of Idaho reached this Republican convention city today with a commitment to new men that "nothing has been settled" about the presidential nomination.

The Idaho senator declined to discuss the convention outlook or his candidacy until after he had conferred with the Idaho delegation and Carl Borah, the campaign manager.

He said he was prepared to support the nomination if he were elected and considered it advisable.

Welfare of Party Is Foremost, Says Borah

WILLIAM E. BORAH

Cleveland, June 8 (AP).—Senator William E. Borah told his own Idaho delegation today he would not "go into any combination or movement to stop Landon" or any other strong candidate.

"Much has been said here about my joining in a movement to stop the leading candidate," Borah said, "but I do not feel that I want to go into any combination or movement to attempt to control the convention through any series of deals."

"I defer to the members of the delegation as to what they desire to do, but we have nothing to gain by doing so."

"They are willing for me to become the spearhead of a (stop) drive, but they say nothing about what will happen to me after the opposition has been destroyed."

Borah talked with the Idaho delegation shortly after his arrival from Washington.

The welfare of the party is foremost," Borah continued. "It must be dynamited from the present lethargy. It must again be made to serve the cause of its party."

"My first interest is in the platform. I have seen several of them."

"If the convention adopts a (mild) expression on such vital questions as face us today, the cause is lost. The Republican party must sound a clarion call to the people through a dynamic platform."

"We want a platform that means the Republican party will take up the fight of the people."

"The time has come for a clarion call to the party to write a plain and specific platform that is understandable to the average man and woman."

"As far as my candidacy is concerned, it has from the beginning been secondary to an enunciation of a platform that will be of real benefit to this country."

"The Republican party is engaged in a fight for its very life. We need a progressive, courageous, intelligent man, and a progressive, courageous and intelligent platform or we cannot hope for victory."

"I have been in many parts of the country."

"What I have seen and heard leads me to believe there is much dissatisfaction in the policies of the present administration. There is as yet no crystallization of opinion by the people as to what they are going to do about it."

"The Republicans stand in a position in Cleveland which amounts to the organization of a new party."

Hoffman Takes Reason
Trenton, N. J., June 8 (AP).—Governor William J. Hoffman, who was sworn in as governor today, said he would not "go into any combination or movement to stop Landon" or any other strong candidate.

"Much has been said here about my joining in a movement to stop the leading candidate," Hoffman said, "but I do not feel that I want to go into any combination or movement to attempt to control the convention through any series of deals."

"I defer to the members of the delegation as to what they desire to do, but we have nothing to gain by doing so."

"They are willing for me to become the spearhead of a (stop) drive, but they say nothing about what will happen to me after the opposition has been destroyed."

Hoffman talked with the New Jersey delegation shortly after his arrival from Washington.

New Coal Field Tension
Springfield, Ill., June 8 (AP).—Illinois coal fields were in a state of tension today after a battle between strikers and owners manifested tension over a day after a battle attempt to force the miners to return to work.

The battle was fought in the Springfield field, where the miners' union, the United Mine Workers of America, is fighting for a 40-hour week, a 10-cent wage increase, and recognition of the union as the bargaining agent for the miners.

The owners, represented by the Springfield Coal and Coke Co., are fighting for a 48-hour week, a 5-cent wage increase, and recognition of the company as the bargaining agent for the miners.

Early Arrivals Remark "Landon Is In," "Landon Heads the Pack" as Delegates Gather to Nominate Candidates.

KNOX IS STRONG
Feeling Exists Landon Must Pass by Third Ballot; Knox Seen as Strong Second Choice.

Cleveland, June 8 (AP).—Republicans massed for their 21st convention in greater numbers hourly today to find the Landon leaders saying their campaign was "rolling along," but Senator Borah insisted that "nothing has been settled."

More and more it seemed the nominating vote might be measured not so much by the button-holing of footloose delegates, but by debate on economic fundamentals in the platform committee and perhaps on the convention floor itself.

Simon Fess of Ohio, former senator and party chairman, looked the situation over and commented to friends "Landon is in."

John D. M. Hamilton, managing for Governor Alf M. Landon of Kansas, reported "we've certainly had no losses in Cleveland and have had many accessions."

He said he knew nothing about the platform or Landon's views on it. "My business has been delegates for the presidential nomination," he explained.

Borah in Huddle
Arriving from Washington, Borah went into a huddle with members of his Idaho delegation before indicating his tack in the attempt to head off his Kansas rival.

He threw out a feeler for an invitation from the convention to address it, but got no immediate encouragement.

Asked about it, Hamilton said he had nothing to do with convention arrangements.

The procession of the arrivals passed through the Landon reception room at the Hollenden Hotel for hours. None of the other candidates had such elaborate quarters or promotion paraphernalia.

At headquarters of Col. Frank Knox of Illinois, William J. Donovan of New York, a leader, told newsmen Landon was heading the pack.

"We might as well face the fact," Donovan said.

"Personally, I believe the Landon backing is weaker than the Landon camp maintains and I'm confident the governor will not be nominated on the first ballot. And if he does not get the nomination in three ballots, he is lost."

Knox Is Strong
"Colonel Knox definitely appears to be the strongest second choice in the field." Earlier, Edward A. Hayes, chairman of the Knox campaign committee, had predicted 361 or more votes on the first ballot.

The name of former Governor Frank G. Lowden of Illinois was heard now and again in hotel lobby speculation about the Landon opposition centering on another candidate.

Friends of the old times were very much of the opinion that he would not accept, if nominated. He is 75 years old.

Another delegation was around Landon while newspapers waited for a press conference by Borah. Amidst much shouting, the 25 Texas votes were nailed down by caucus action. He's the best available man to fill the bill," recommended H. E. Baum of Amarillo.

Although Kansas has only 12 votes, over 200 delegates from the state were on hand, and planning the Landon campaign in all who would follow it.

The Landon campaign was organized by the Landon campaign committee, headed by Governor Alf M. Landon, and the Landon campaign committee, headed by Governor Alf M. Landon, and the Landon campaign committee, headed by Governor Alf M. Landon.

Ulster Historical Society Dinner Was Held on Saturday

At the literary meeting and luncheon of the Ulster County Historical Society, held at the Governor Clinton Hotel on Saturday, the entire program flowed along like a river, beginning with the headwaters of the past, following the refreshing stream of that past's influence down to today, then into the mainstream of this day, and with a forward motion toward the great ocean of the future.

The meeting was held in the morning in the lounge of the hotel, and was presided over by the president, Judge G. D. B. Hasbrouck. In his customary felicitous and ingratiating fashion, Judge Hasbrouck gave a brief but very interesting survey of the Ulster County Historical Society, from its organization in 1859, its cessation of activities after 1870 to 1930 and its resurrection and its very valuable efforts and accomplishments from then to the present time.

The judge also related how, when as a young man in 1853 he was running for the Assembly and was greatly helped by reaching his goal by a young doctor in the town of Plattekill. Living for a time in Modena, the doctor came to transfer his affections and practice to Dutchess county, where he has been a loved and highly honored physician and surgeon ever since, adding "and he writes beautifully and well." His was the first paper of the morning giving the history of Colonel Lewis Du Bois and showing how he, too, had been stolen by Dutchess county. Judge Hasbrouck then introduced Dr. J. Wilson Poucher, one of his local and most honored friends, whose very interesting and historically valuable paper will appear in a later issue of "The Freeman."

The second paper to be given had for its appealing subject, "Old Stone Houses of Marlborough," and was given by Mr. Nash, about whom Judge Hasbrouck agreed with the newspaper writer who said "he wrote with a sparkling pen." Living himself in one of the old houses known as the "Old King Cole House," he was peculiarly in sympathy with his subject which he presented with many touches of delicious humor, and a kindly appreciation of the home life of the past, showing that the "river" was flowing through sunlit spaces.

At the conclusion of the two papers, Judge Hasbrouck said that he knew all present would agree with him that both papers had been very unusual in subject matter and presentation and a rising vote of thanks and appreciation was given both Dr. Poucher and Mr. Nash.

Dr. Nash's paper will also appear in a later issue of "The Freeman." By the time that the hour for the luncheon, 1 o'clock, arrived, the gathering had reached much larger proportions and some 50 guests stood as the Rev. Arthur E. Gude, pastor of the old Reformed Dutch Church, asked the blessing.

At the close of the excellent and admirably served luncheon, Judge Hasbrouck introduced Mrs. Seaman of Yama Farm, as the toastmistress for the day. Mrs. Seaman first made an announcement of the tea to be given Thursday afternoon, June 11, on the lawn of the Governor Clinton Hotel for the purpose of securing added funds for the incomparable work of Sir Wilfrid Grenfell in Labrador. There will be an address by one who has worked with Dr. Grenfell.

Mrs. Seaman then called upon Nelson Taylor of Buffalo asking him to tell of the Buffalo Historical Society. Mr. Taylor gave a vivid and enthusiastic picture of the wonderful building in which this Historical Society of New York state is housed and where every possible facility for the accommodation of its various treasures has been provided. It is entirely free from taxation. It has a staff of fifteen experienced people with some twenty men schooled in such activities.

There are two outstanding departments, one looking after traditional and past historical work, the other educational and forward looking. Once each year there is a meeting held for members only to enjoy their treasures among themselves. For the remainder of the time the building and its treasures are open to the public for the purpose of arousing an American spirit in the minds and hearts of all but especially of the foreign population of the city where there are many Poles, Italians and Germans.

The museum is open daily, including Sunday afternoon. There is a staff of history teachers in charge and usually during a week, including Sunday, a thousand pupils visit the museum and take advantage of the teaching that is available. People come a hundred and fifty miles distance to avail themselves of the advantage to be found in the historical building. Asked "How do you do it?" Mr. Taylor explained that men interested in the project gave of their wealth and assistance in securing endowments, etc., and being subsidized by the city government, all salaries of caretakers and teachers are paid by the city.

In closing Mr. Taylor expressed the hope that in the near future there might be developed an exchange of historical material between states and cities, for the broadening of advantages for the study of history in a more vital and interesting fashion by future students of this subject.

Those present showed heartily their appreciation of Mr. Taylor's talk, so clearly informing them about the Buffalo Historical Society and its treasure house. The next speaker to be introduced by Mrs. Seaman was Prof. Fred Morris, head of the department of geology at the Massachusetts College of Technology, who, in his talk showed convincingly and delightfully with a fascinating subject geology as shown today must be.

Far be it from a mere layman to attempt to give an accurate account of what sounded like an unbelievably gigantic fairy story, but was instead demonstrated truth.

The phase of geology that Prof. Morris took to fit into the idea of such an historical meeting was of interest. He had noted with great interest that every one who had spoken had emphasized the subject of time as related to necessary to history. Just as in geology there was the enormity of time to be considered.

Today the time scale of the earth is known and it is endless without limit past or future, an infinite rhythm which is eternal. All knowledge of the earth and mankind could be studied right here in Ulster county which runs like a luminous strip of color upon which there has been a flash of light five thousand million years long.

The speaker showed the life of mankind on earth to have been some 10 million years. Dividing time into an infinite scale he pictured four inches to stand for the life of mankind up to 1536 and the Virginia Colonies, 100 years before the coming of The Mayflower. So the story of the races, tribes, culture and language of man here is convincingly long. The inference to be drawn from the study of this so far past was that people were living in homes in America, maintaining themselves over broad areas for from ten to twenty thousand years.

That raised the question, "What culture was being developed during all this long period?" Prof. Morris continued to fascinatingly depict the migration of peoples from Asia, north into Siberia, where they could live only by hunting, then across Behring strait down into Alaska, arriving with all but their knowledge of hunting left behind in the long years of their migration. That meant that all of their culture they gradually developed right here in America, having no point of even language contact with the Mongolians, no root in common either north or south.

But language develops rapidly, culture slowly, and all of our vast growth in agriculture, weaving, building, all that goes to make our civilization of today was invented and developed right here from the Indian occupancy of America of a hundred thousand years ago.

Couched in the poetic language of romance and adventure the address of Prof. Morris left his hearers humbled by their own impatient outlook on the life of man.

Rape Communism
The elements changed with the coming of the last speaker, Sherman Rogers, whom Mrs. Seaman introduced as a man from the great northwest, lumber jack and man who had risen from a boyhood of absolutely no educational advantages to a place in our present history of vital importance.

The illuminating, searching, cleansing fire of genuine patriotism and love of mankind flamed forth in the burning words of this man.

He told his audience that he had come to tell them how to unmake Communism. Eleven years ago he started for San Francisco in the first airplane of North America to fly across the country. He didn't quite enjoy it and he enjoyed it much less when suddenly the engine stopped. He reached for his parachute, to be told sternly to let that go and keep his eye upon the mountains that he could see for their compass was gone. He never occurred to him that he could ever miss seeing mountains, but suddenly there stood through a cloud bank that hid the mountains completely. In spite of all that they did finally land in a railroad yard, alive.

Said Sherman Rogers, "When your compass is gone, keep your sight on something that is left that you can see, some time-old landmarks, such as the Historical Society is guarding. Politics do not go deep enough to afford such a safe landmark, for we don't even dare discuss them. To discuss religion with someone who thinks differently is rash enough, but we are even more touchy about politics. That is not good. If I cannot discuss a matter without getting mad that is not good, because if I can't talk I must fight. You cannot change a man's mind with a fist. The only way is to look him in the face and discuss the problem. Sing Sing is the place for those who want to hate."

"We are not controversial because we dare to defend the Constitution, for it is the anchor our ancestors fought for, the character in our forefathers."

Those forefathers risked their necks to give us what we have today. It is for us to see that our youngsters are given the landmarks and the compass that have guided our nation for its three hundred years. We must give the prayers and strength of our nation to those men of old and if we had their patriotism and family feeling, Mr. Rogers knew we would not be as we are today.

The speaker admitted that he was a radical but said that he had never belonged to the I. W. W. He had full confidence in the laboring people who have that they had to work every day. He expressed his conviction and conviction that the backbone of a nation is the laborer and a backbone, for without the upper classes he had noted that

Racketeers Sharpening Chisels For Cut At Ex-Soldiers' Bonds

By HERBERT PLUMMER

Washington (AP)—Ex-doughboys are in for a tremendous squeezing when they collect their bonus cash and bonds beginning June 15.

"In fact," says one veterans' administration official, "there are so many racketeers designed to get the money from the ex-soldiers that the bureau is afraid to let them be made public in fear that other racketeers will use them."

The bait tempting the unscrupulous is the $1,924,000,100 the treasury estimates will be made available to more than 3,500,000 holders of adjusted service certificates.

Racketeers Seek Names
Some of the money, officials are certain, will start cash registers ringing in all parts of the country.

They had no time for grace at table six days in a week. In the homes of the farmers and laboring men all across this country he found the contrary, for the laboring man seldom eats without asking a blessing. If he were as wise as the men who went out into wildness to settle this country we would go to Church, there to find and claim a power greater than our own.

In proof of his statement that amongst the laboring men whether of mine or logging camp, could facts be put alongside of the fallacies that were given them as to employers, etc., there would be no strikes, Sherman Rogers told his own story of the coming of Schwab the great steel king to the shipyard on the west coast where he was one of the rebellious spirits, and a leader of other men.

Begged by the man who later became his father-in-law, not to stir up trouble, he thought it over and determined that that was good advice at the same time that he also determined not to allow the man to speak. Gathering his cronies around him, he told them to "grease up their faces," and when "rich employer Schwab" got up to speak to watch him (Rogers) for the signal of his two raised arms to begin applauding, and to keep right on with the applause until the hour set for his speech was passed. That would give the newspaper men a chance to tell what a reception the steel king had from six-thousand workers, but Schwab himself would understand.

But Mr. Schwab sensed the situation and stepping to the front of the platform, looked down right into their eyes and smiled a genuine, friendly smile. The speaker admitted that he had thought of every possible eventually but that he was, for a moment, too surprised to raise his hands for the signal. Mr. Schwab began to speak and what he was saying to them was that they, the laboring men who were doing their best no matter how hard the work, were the men who were building up the great industries in our land and that were producing the wealth of the land, and they could see he meant that. Later he told them that at the end of their hard day's work they could go home to their families and a night of good sound sleep.

And then he also told them about his job, where night after night, often week after week he never saw his home; worked 24 hours a day if necessary to unravel some difficulty, etc. He never mentioned what a big man he was nor how important, but talked to them as though they were all men together, and he sensed that Mr. Schwab loved human beings, adding "We don't fear those who like us." In less than 37 minutes his year of communism had been unmade, said Mr. Rogers.

The trouble with us today, according to Sherman Rogers is not with a few wild men who are would-be leaders, but because the great mass of all of us is not doing its duty. As for politics, he was not as much distressed over the wrong leader as he was over the fact that our right leaders were asleep at the switch.

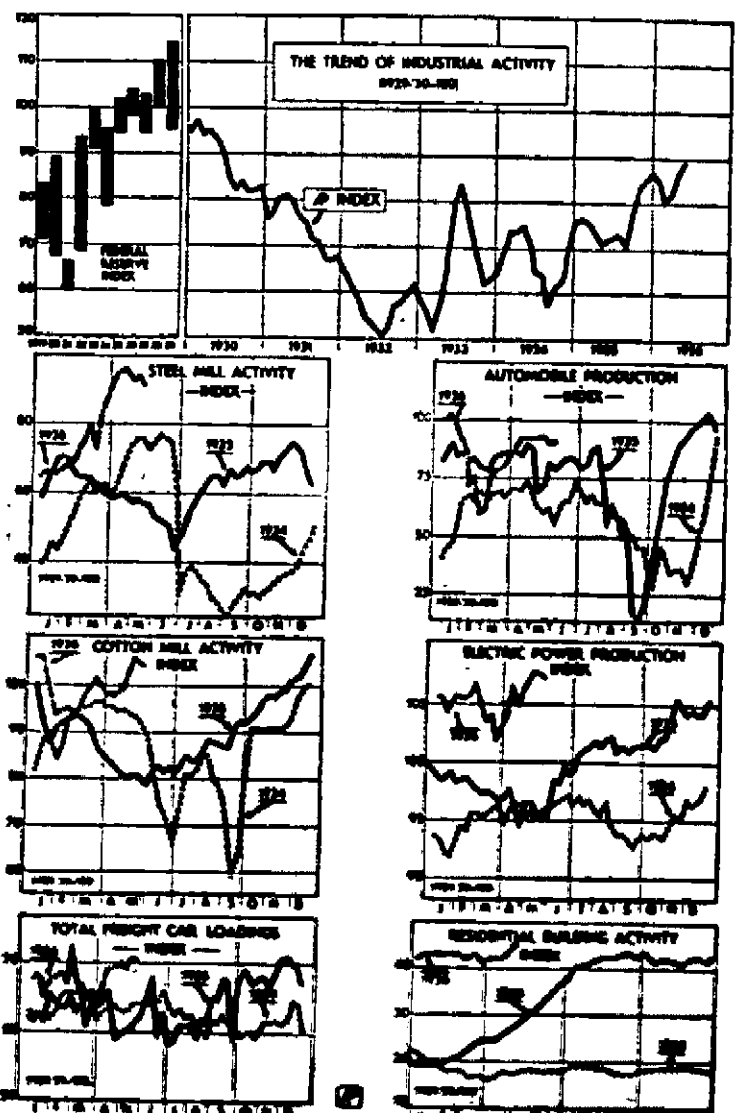

Today millions are in the dark, looking for the light and the speaker added "With this venerated faith of ours for years, we owe them something to give us. The heart in one class is just as good and deep as in another and they can be led and will accept right leadership but they will not be driven." Sherman Rogers closed by saying that only by standing by the Constitution so that we may salute the American flag without apologizing can we build for the future and pass on to those to come what those who went before us passed on to us.

Cold type is entirely inadequate to Sherman Rogers and what he had to say to the Ulster County Historical Society, for it left no room anywhere for cool indifference or smug complacency.

Cardinal Delays Dawn Angelus.
Paris (AP)—Church bells of Paris now peel the morning angelus at 7 o'clock instead of at the traditional hour of 6. The change was ordered by Cardinal Verdier because many people living adjacent to churches disliked being awakened so early in the morning.

Pilsudski in Unnamed Grave.
Vilno, Poland (AP)—A 19-ton block of granite will mark the grave here of the late Marshal Pilsudski's mother, at whose feet the urn containing the great statesman's heart also is buried. No name appears on the monument, only the words: "The Mother and the Heart of the Son."

Business Activity Trend May See Continued Industrial Gain

By The Associated Press
With the wheels of industry whirling at the fastest rate since June, 1930, during May The Associated Press index of industrial activity averaged 88.9 of the 1923-25 level. The May figure was above the monthly average for 1935, although some 21 per cent under the 1929 average. The index was 85.7 last month. Cotton manufacturing activity contributed largely to the improvement in the index, rising sharply early in the month as new stock orders sent many cotton mills and remanufacturers of piece goods into the market. After moving along on an even keel for more than nine months, the residential building index pushed ahead during May. Electric power output rose to the highest point ever recorded early in the month, tapering somewhat at the close. Freight carloadings maintained an even course upward with miscellaneous freight-industrial loadings being well sustained. With the spring rise culminating in mid-April, automobile output on a seasonally adjusted basis slipped back slightly during April, although the retail demand continued at high levels. Steel mill activity reached the peak for the year to date in the latter part of April and rounded steadily during May.

6 Boys, Man Drown In State Tragedies as Auto Fatalities Drop

Albany, N. Y., June 8 (AP)—Six boys and a man were added to New York state's roll of drowning victims today after a week-end of summery temperatures which lured them to cooling waters.

Ignoring a "no trespassing sign," two brothers went wading in Eighteen-mile creek near Buffalo and lost their lives when they slipped into a deep pool yesterday afternoon. They were Lawrence Keppeler, 14, and Donald Keppeler, 10, of Hamburg.

At Waterford, George Barrietas, 9, and Independent Catallo, 8, chums drowned in an outlet of the large canal. They, too, were wading and went beyond their depth.

Michael Benz, 18, of Oswego, drowned in the Oswego river when a canoe overturned, and James Williams, Jr., 10, negro, in a canal at Buffalo, Saturday.

Patrick Gallagher, 23, Letchworth Village farmhand drowned while swimming in Fox's creek near Schenectady.

All the bodies were recovered. A sharp drop in upstate week-end traffic fatalities marked the end of safety week today.

Only five persons were killed during the week-end as compared with fifteen the previous week-end. The total deaths for the week in upstate highway accidents was twenty-one.

Yesterday's victims were Mrs. Ethel M. Wurtz, 48, of Buffalo and Mrs. Susan S. Garney, of Poughkeepsie, killed when their automobiles overturned and James H. Mitchell, 22, of Buffalo, who died when his car plunged down an embankment.

Saturday's victims were Charles Tooley, 19, of West Winfield, killed when an automobile in which he was riding went off the road, and Gerard Pugliese, 10, killed when struck by a truck.

Governor Lehman proclaimed safety week last Sunday, urging motorists to use greater caution on the highways and pointing out that New York state had the "greatest motor vehicle problem in the world."

Dog Saves Life Of Wounded Nurse

Little Falls, N. Y., June 8 (AP)—A dog emerged as the hero today of an accident which nearly cost the life of his mistress, Miss Ruth Hoxie, 32, a nurse, of Stratford.

Miss Hoxie was shot through the chest while target shooting yesterday when she tripped and accidentally discharged a .22 caliber rifle. She collapsed with a bullet through her lung.

Unable to arouse his mistress, the dog raced half a mile to the farm home of Miss Hoxie's father, Raymond Hoxie. Alarmed by the animal's frantic barking, Hoxie followed him through the fields to the prostrate form of his daughter.

Scattered Rain Over Section of South

Atlanta, June 8 (AP)—Scattered sections of several drought-hit southern states gave thanks today for showers which followed prayers for rain in hundreds of churches.

Although the showers yesterday actually did little to reduce a prospective $100,000,000 drought damage to crops, forecasts for continued cloudy weather and showers left farmers hopeful that fields still needing water might be drenched by downpours today.

Rain fell in patches from Louisiana to Virginia, but while scores of points received up to an inch of rain, areas a few miles away had little or none.

Nobel Prizes Awarded
AT LAST YEAR'S VALUES

Stockholm (AP)—The five Nobel prizes to be awarded for literature, medicine, chemistry, physics and peace next November will be worth $42,540 each, or virtually the same as last year, when each award was $42,537.

This decrease from the all-time top of $46,419 in 1931 is due to increased taxes and loss of revenue through forced conversion of bonds.

On the whole, however, the fund has held up well during the depression, and now balances on $5,404,211 kroner ($12,722,239) or about one million kroner more than last year. The low point was reached in 1932, when Sweden suffered from the post-war deflation. The prize then was worth only $39,993 each.

It's Time to Attack White Pine Weevil

The owners of young forest plantations at this season of the year will have the white pine weevil to consider. This is one of the most destructive insect enemies of the forest. It attacks white pine and other pines but may be controlled provided the owner feels the outlay is possible. There are several methods according to the New York State College of Forestry at Syracuse, N. Y., but the most common one is cutting and burning the affected leaders of the trees.

As the weather grows warmer the weevils lay their eggs during April in the topmost branch of the tree called the leader. The presence of the weevil in the leader may be detected by the wilting of the new growth during June. This method of eradication should be applied while the grubs are in the leader. If they are allowed sufficient time to mature before the leader is cut off, the work of eradication will, therefore, be ineffective. The cost of this sort of eradication may be in the neighborhood of $1.50 an acre. However, there is not much chance of permanent extermination by any method in areas surrounded by natural pine from which the treated areas can be reinfested as in such cases the work of eradication would probably have to be done annually.

Foresters recommend the planting of mixed stands of trees in order to reduce the weevil attacks. The mixed stands may be composed of either evergreen trees or hardwoods depending on the prospective economic value of different kinds of trees in that locality. Red pine is immune to weevil attack. Another way of dealing with the weevil problem is by planting trees close together. In dense stands enough trees will escape the ravages of the weevil to make a full crop of merchantable timber. Insectivorous birds are one of the most effective agents in the destruction of weevils. It would be good economy to encourage actively these very valuable natural control agents.

Named Officers

At the annual meeting of the 10th district of the New York State Chiropractic Society held in Newburgh yesterday afternoon, John L. MacKinnon, 28 Main street, was elected second vice-president and local director. William H. Pretsch, 72 Presidents Place, was re-elected secretary-treasurer for the ensuing year. Plans were made for this district's representation at the state convention to be held at Syracuse the latter part of this month.

Frost Killed Foliage Not Fatal to Trees

The extensive damage done this year to early foliage on many species of trees by frost may not seriously affect the trees thus defoliated, according to the New York State College of Forestry at Syracuse University.

This frost damage is noticeable in New York and Pennsylvania and probably other northeastern states where it affected elms, beech trees, poplars and sumacs, also young spruce trees. According to foresters at the college new foliage will appear soon and unless the freezing is repeated will probably do little material harm to the mature trees so far as the average person may be able to observe. Tree growth, however, will be slightly retarded and may, in some cases, subject the trees to the attack of certain insects and fungous diseases. Trees are much like human beings in this respect. When an accident or malady weakens their constitution they are more subject to attacks of other destructive agencies than when they are in healthy condition.

It is very noticeable in many sections of the Adirondacks that practically all of the early foliage on beech trees, which developed during the unusually warm weather in early spring, has been destroyed and the bare limbs of these stand out conspicuously against the foliage of the evergreens and other hardwood trees of the forests. In central New York, elms have suffered in the same manner and the early and extensive leafing of the sumac may be noticed along almost every highway as it hangs scoured and black on the branches. New leaves have developed since from dormant buds. Usually the destruction of the foliage by frost is not as serious as the freezing of the root systems of a tree such as occurred three years ago during the severe winter in which many valuable ornamental and forest trees died.

Wiltwyck Chapter, D. A. R., Historian Submits Her Report

The historian of Wiltwyck Chapter, D. A. R., submitted her annual report at the last meeting of the chapter. The official report follows: History is a record of things past. Have we made history that will be valuable or even of interest to the generations to come? I believe we have.

At the opening of each meeting, month by month, our regent very beautifully states what our purpose as a society is. We may well spend a few moments looking back into the year we are just completing and see if we have followed out the design.

First—To perpetuate the memory and the spirit of the men and women who achieved American independence.

Under this head our Chapter House, standing as a monument to our patriotic ancestors must reflect the spirit of those who met necessity and made American Independence possible. Not only this house, sacred to us all, but programs given within its walls, from time to time, inspire a true spirit of patriotism.

At our October meeting Willis G. Nash gave a talk on the "Burning of Kingston," which recalled many episodes of war days and made us almost see the devastation wrought by the burning of a city. This meeting was guest day as well as Chapter day.

Another guest day was Washington's Birthday when we again invited friends to enjoy our program with us.

Among those who have joined our ranks this year are a number of young women and it is a satisfaction to know that they, in their day, will carry on the work. Nothing could better perpetuate our ideals than the organization of a Junior group, which was started last year under the sponsorship of Mrs. Harris C. Ingliss and our regent, Miss van Hovenberg. This year, on January 6, under the direction of Mrs. St. John the organization was completed with 11 members. Miss Catharine McCommons was chosen chairman and Miss Mary Hubbard secretary. There have been four regular meetings, which occur on the first Tuesday evening of each month. This group has taken the responsibility of providing our quota for the approved school which New York state sponsors. Mrs. Terwilliger, in her report from Continental Congress, said she was unable to discover just why we, as a state, sponsor but one school. It may be that as a state we prefer to place all of our eggs in one basket. This group also has charge of our Ellis Island work.

On Sunday, May 25, about 50 of our members attended our annual memorial service in the First Dutch Reformed Church, where in the churchyard lie many of our soldier dead. Fifty-one graves had been marked by our society with geraniums and flags. The program, conducted by the pastor, the Rev. Arthur Oudemool, was an impressive one.

Another gesture of respect to our war heroes was the participation of a number of ladies in the Memorial Day parade and also the attendance of a group of D. A. R. members at the Sunday evening service held in the Municipal Auditorium by patriotic organizations of the city.

Second—To promote the development of an enlightened public opinion.

The inspiring talk given by Mrs. E. Thomas Boyd, chaplain general of the National society, D. A. R., who was our guest speaker at the regular May meeting, gave us a larger idea of what was transpiring in the world and of the duty we have in making known our opinions on matters pertaining to the constitution, the Supreme Court and the government in general. As women who stand for patriotism and the welfare of our country we were urged to uphold our constitution which has adequately served so many generations.

From the reports brought back by our representatives at the Continental Congress either the delegates particularly stressed matters relating to the development of an enlightened public opinion or the general trend of the convention was in that direction.

Much credit is due Mrs. R. H. D. Boerker for her work as publicity chairman. She has brought before the public a true outline of the work accomplished by our chapter. Perhaps her activities can be told in no better way than to say she has caused over 3,000 lines to be published in the local and New York City newspapers during the year.

Third—To foster patriotic citizenship.

Mrs. William E. Finch, as chairman of Americanism, has done much to foster patriotic citizenship by the interest she has taken in the foreigners who have become citizens here. She has aided some in securing citizenship and has made a point of attending all naturalization meetings where aliens have been made citizens. She and her committee have welcomed fifty-three new citizens, each one being presented with a D.

A. R. Manual of Citizenship with a request that it be studied. Each new citizen was also presented with a flag. Mrs. Finch has taken a great deal of interest in her work and has gained many valuable ideas as to what should be the requirements for citizenship and what duty and responsibility the Daughters of the American Revolution have in this matter.

Mrs. Lancelot Phelps in her report from the Continental Congress, which was beautifully given, spoke especially of her desire for better citizenship which was inspired by the various speeches and by the general air of good citizenship which pervaded the whole atmosphere of the convention. She spoke of patriotism and spirituality as essentials in the making of good citizens and recommended that we think alike and work together toward bringing about a better citizenship.

As I listened to enthusiastic convention reports and spoke with different women in regard to the work of the past year it seemed to me that we are on the eve of a great patriotic revival.

With this meeting we close the year, one that we can all look back upon as a year of the finest good fellowship we have ever known and in our memory will linger a feeling of love and admiration for our regent, Miss van Hovenberg, who in spite of the handicap of ill health has so successfully led us through.

Notes

We have reached out a considerable distance from home this year and placed a D. A. R. marker on the grave of Miss Josephine Deyo at Hilo, Hawaii. At the time of her death Miss Deyo was a member of Wiltwyck Chapter.

At the regular May meeting a beautiful flag was presented to our chapter. The name of the donor was not given. Mrs. William Davis made the presentation.

Our library, containing valuable historical works, has been enriched this year by several lineage books.

A matter well worth recording and something that may never happen again to any of our members is the fact that the receiving line at a social function in connection with this year's Continental Congress was held up while Mrs. E. Thomas Boyd, chaplain general, bestowed a kiss upon our Mrs. Terwilliger, who was in attendance as alternate for our regent, Miss van Hovenberg.

Mrs. W. R. Anderson reported eight subscriptions to the D. A. R. magazine, a gain of one over last year.

Mrs. Anderson also reported that she had attended several meetings of Kingston Better Films Society and had assisted in various ways.

Mrs. David Terry, chairman of the committee on historic spots, was a delegate to the state conference in October held at the Hotel Roosevelt in New York city and also visited the conference house, also called Billow house, at Tottenville, Staten Island, N. Y. In May Mrs. Terry made a visit to Kenmore, Fredericksburg, Virginia. Mrs. Terry, with the assistance of Mrs. Davis and Adelbert Ransome, gave needed attention to the markers on the S. A. R. graves in the cemetery of the First Dutch Church.

Mrs. William Davis gave a report of gifts received during the year, many of them of considerable value.

Lehman Signs Bills For Permanent Relief

Albany, N. Y., June 8 (AP)—Governor Lehman's signature today cleared the way for the handling of unemployment relief administration in New York state on a permanent basis effective July 1, 1937, thus ending the emergency policy in effect since 1930.

The law provides for gradual centralization of the functions of the Temporary Emergency Relief Administration in a permanent authority within the State Social Welfare Department, commencing next July 1 and culminating a year hence.

The first step will be taken next July 1 when Governor Lehman will appoint a new state board of social welfare of 15 members, three more than at present, composed of one person from each of the nine judicial districts and six from the state at large.

Mr. Lehman is directed to name the chairman, but the board itself will select all other officers and appoint the state commissioner of social welfare as at present.

"It is a great pleasure for me to sign this bill which recognizes and provides for relief of our unemployed as a permanent policy of state government," the governor commented.

The chief executive also announced approval of a supplemental budget for the fiscal year 1936-37 of $1,922,723, $145,000 less than that adopted by the legislature.

Churches In Charge Of Friday Blind Sale

Have you visited the Kingston Sale for the Blind which is being held at 304 Wall street? If not the time for doing so is short, and if you are going you should hurry to give your support to those worthy eighteenth producers who have conquered their handicap, and are now self-supporting citizens.

The blind, through years of patient training and endeavor, have learned to use power driven machines in their work, and can now compete with the ordinary channels of trade in putting their merchandise on the retail market. If one should visit the workshops for the blind, he would see rows of electric power sewing machines in the girls' shop, and at the machines would be blind girls making aprons, hemming Lady Pepperell sheets and pillow cases, Turkish towels, and binding the washable suede card table covers, baby blankets and many other articles which everyone needs and wants to own. Why not buy these articles from the blind, and help them to earn their own livelihood by keeping busy at their work?

In the men's shops will be found drills, lathes and many other electric power driven devices, and at this machinery are men who have learned to run these appliances as well as most sighted help in factories. They manufacture stools, toys and games, and many other wooden articles which are well made and reasonably priced.

The committee in charge of the sale on Friday, June 12, are as follows:

10 a. m.—2 p. m., Trinity Methodist Episcopal—Mrs. H. Willmott, chairman; Mrs. H. Eldridge, Miss M. Hale, Mrs. M. Burger, Mrs. S. E. Elghmey, Mrs. F. Ralche, Mrs. F. Deming, Mrs. W. Gregory, Mrs. A. Tongue, Mrs. S. Finley, Mrs. C. Fuller.

2-3:45 p. m., First Reformed Ladies' Aid—Mrs. Harry B. Walker, chairman; Mrs. C. F. Doty, Mrs. Carrie Clarke, Mrs. Harry L. Edson, Mrs. B. H. Houghtaling, Miss Ella Bernard, Mrs. Oscar Edwards, Mrs. C. L. Palmer, Mrs. W. Dean Hays, Mrs. O. D. B. Ingalls, Miss Helen Ingelse, Mrs. J. E. Low, Mrs. G. W. Van Anden, Mrs. E. E. Billings, Mrs. B. L. Miller, Mrs. A. Noble Graham, Mrs. H. W. Keator, Mrs. Elmendorf.

3:45-5:30 p. m., First Reformed Missionary Society—Mrs. E. J. Van Tassel, chairman; Mrs. Arthur Frohlich, Mrs. C. S. Treadwell, Mrs. G. C. Stafford, Miss Mary Case, Mrs. Robin Stelle.

Methodists Held Meeting on Friday

The Kingston District Stewards meeting, consisting of the ministers and district stewards of the Methodist Episcopal Church, met in the historic Trinity Church of Kingston, Friday June 5. George Lowe, layman of the local church, graciously welcomed the visitors, while a fitting response was made by E. B. Schepmos, one of the visiting stewards. The morning session was opened at 10:30 with the Rev. Joel Lincoln leading the devotions. Following the organization of the conference, the Rev. Dr. Joseph W. Chasey, district superintendent, brought a challenging message, outlining the program of the district work for the summer. The conference was particularly fortunate in having the privilege to hear Chester A. Smith of Peekskill, layman, and Dr. Allan MacRae of New York, minister, both of whom attended the General Conference at Columbus, O., in May. Their reports covering aspects of that gathering were enlightening, helpful and stimulating. Following several announcements the meeting adjourned for lunch.

The conference reconvened to listen to a passionate appeal given by Fred Victor, superintendent of the Anti-Saloon League of New York. Mr. Victor pleading for total abstinence said, "the moderate drinker is the modern menace." There followed a short business session covering the financial items and usual reports all of which indicated a fine growth in "kingdom interests." The Rev. Dr. Howard Thompson of Newburgh brought a stirring message on evangelism, saying among other things, "that the great need of the present time is a passion for lost souls." Dr. Chasey led the conference to a fitting close in a consecration period, asking all "to go back to do God's work joyously."

PREMIER BLUM SEES DISORDERS

An alert photographer caught Leon Blum, Socialist premier of France, in this off moment as he watched street disorders in Paris before taking over the government. $400,000 Fire At Schenectady Sunday

Schenectady, N. Y., June 5 (AP)—A fire described as one of the most spectacular in the city's history, left nearly a block-long area in ruins today. Two warehouses, one residence and several smaller buildings were destroyed. The damage was estimated at between $300,000 and $400,000.

Two firemen were injured battling the fire, which started early last evening, swept quickly through the buildings.

Three alarms concentrated all available fire apparatus at the scene. The furniture of 150 families, sixty pianos, fifteen trucks, including seven large moving vans, and seventeen passenger cars stored in nearby garages, were lost.

16 Passengers Drowned

Moscow, June 5 (AP)—Sixteen passengers aboard a ship on the Volga river drowned Saturday in a collision with a barge, delayed dispatches reached the capital today.

Over 150,000 women have completed the Bell Telephone System health course.

One Safe, Two Thought Killed.
 Paxton, Ind., June 8 (AP)—Ivan Alexander, was rescued alive from the Dugger-Martin coal mine early today, several hours after he had been overcome by gas while attempting to find two other men believed killed in an explosion. The two men still in the mine, Charles Webb and John Williams, rescuers believe were killed in the explosion, the cause of which explosion was not known.

Community Concerts Will Be Held Here

It was known late Saturday evening that the Four Cooperative Community Concerts for Kingston and vicinity are now an assured fact, and patrons will be privileged to hear Albert Spalding, violinist; Helen Olheim, Metropolitan contralto star; Carola Gaya, Spanish dancer and The Russian Imperial Singers this coming season. Efficient, energetic, splendidly planned work has been done by membership chairman, Mrs. Allan L. Hanstein, the captains and workers, assisted by Frederick Michel of the Cooperative Concert Service of New York city, and the workers on the teams and the response to their efforts is most gratifying.

Because of the many expressed requests to hold the concerts in the Kingston High School Auditorium that is the place that has been chosen for the holding of the concerts, and a full house is assured. Sincere congratulations and thanks have been extended all those who have labored to bring this ideal course of concerts to this community.

The officers of the Cooperative Community Concerts Association are: President, Dr. Fred Holcomb; vice-presidents, Mrs. Clara Norton Reed, Mayor Conrad J. Heiselman, LeVan Haver, Mrs. Chadbourne of Stone Ridge; secretary, Mrs. Eloise Lovett; treasurer, Vernon Miller; membership chairman, Mrs. Allan L. Hanstein.

The board of directors is composed of the Rev. Dr. Frank B. Seeley, Judge John T. Loughran, Judge G. D. B. Hasbrouck, Edward Covkendall, Judge Harry E. Schirick, Howard A. Lewis, Mrs. John N. Cordts, Clarence L. Dumm, Richard Overbaugh of Saugerties, Sam N. Mann, Robert K. Hancock.

The captains who so admirably put over the membership drive under Mrs. Hanstein's able leadership were Mrs. Louis Kegler, Mrs. William S. Eitinge, Mrs. Stanley Matthews, Mrs. A. H. Wicks, Mrs. Milton Stewart, Mrs. Henry Millonig, Jr., Mrs. A. B. Shufeldt, Mrs. Benjamin Johnston, Mrs. Harold Rakov, Mrs. Bernard Forst, Mrs. A. Noble Graham, Mrs. George Pratt, Highland, Mrs. Henry Wood, Stone Ridge, Richard Overbaugh, Saugerties, Mrs. Carl Eric Linden, Woodstock.

7 Persons Dead In Hotel Blaze

San Francisco, June 8, (AP)—Police held one man today while they investigated the possibility of incendiarism in a hotel fire that resulted in seven deaths and injuries to 30 persons.

Raymond Searles, a roomer at the hotel, was taken into custody after his story of turning in the alarm early yesterday was challenged by Ed Flynn, a special patrolman. Flynn said he was the one who turned in the alarm.

Three of the victims of the fire in the four-story frame structure were unidentified. The Rev. F. C. Clark, 56, Cheryenne, Wyo., died in the flames after pushing his wife through a window into the arms of firemen. Mrs. Clara Roland, 60, a seamstress, leaped three stories to her death. Two other victims were tentatively identified as Jose Carmona, 31, a laborer, and Fred Sellar, 20, itinerant rug cleaner.

Police Inspector George Engler said Searles, WPA vocational instructor at a boy's club, appeared to have an unusual interest in the fire. The inspector said Searles hurried to the night club Shamrock fire, in which four persons died less than a month ago and poked through the ruins.

Held as a vagrant, Searles denied any knowledge of how the fire started near the first floor entrance of the hotel. He declared he was on his way to the hotel when he saw the flames and turned in the alarm.

LONDON MANAGER REPLIES TO BORAH AIDE

Smiling, John Hamilton (upper right), leader of the London forces at Cleveland for the Republican national convention, declared at his press conference he had no fault to find with Republicans who supported the New Deal during its first two years from patriotic motives. His statement was made in reply to an attack from Borah headquarters quoting London in support of the Roosevelt administration. (Associated Press Photo)

FLASHES OF LIFE SKETCHED IN BRIEF

—BY ASSOCIATED PRESS—

End of Rainbow
 Chestnut Ridge, N. C. — E. D. Swann plowed up a pot of $10 "gold pieces" on his farm here.

Excitedly he began digging around for more, and there they were by the dozens.

His fond hopes of retiring, however, were short-lived. Taking his fortune to Asheville, he learned the coins were counterfeit, probably buried by a counterfeit ring broken up in this section 30 years ago.

Resentful
 Chicago—Thomas Newman awakened from a nap in the rear seat of his automobile to find a stranger driving it away. He protested strongly. The stranger produced a gun, forced Newman to disrobe, robbed him of $4 and a watch, tied him up and left him by the roadside with only a sack to protect him from the chilly wind.

Numbered
 Alexandria, Neb.—His car hit a bridge, dropped 30 feet into a creek bed and caught fire. Adolph Bartling, 28, kicked a hole through the top of the car and rescued three passengers.

When they took Adolph to the hospital they discovered he had a double fracture of the right leg. He hadn't even noticed it.

Peacemaker's Fate

Pyromaniac Sought For New York Fires

New York, June 8 (AP)—Fire Marshals and city detectives sought vainly today an unidentified pyromaniac suspected of setting a series of apartment house blazes during the week-end in which one woman was killed and 13 persons were injured.

Mrs. Sarah Siegel, 62, died of burns and injuries received when she jumped from a third-floor window after pushing her grand-daughter, Rhoda Fiber, 13, out of the same window. The child was injured seriously.

Twenty-four hours later, Anna C. Buss, 43, a school teacher, also lost her life in a tenement fire, and although there was no immediate evidence that this blaze was a pyromaniac's work, it also was investigated.

Firemen summoned by a neighbor found the teacher's body in a partly filled bathtub. The small but smoky fire was confined to another room.

The blaze in which Mrs. Siegel lost her life (at 1131 Clinton avenue) was one of eight fires which broke out mysteriously within less than three hours in the Bronx and Harlem, and detectives believed they were started by the same man sought for setting five buildings ablaze a month ago.

Partly because so many of the fires occurred early Sunday mornings, the officers theorized that the pyromaniac was someone intoxicated by excessive Saturday night liquor drinking.

More than 100 detectives were assigned to assist Fire Marshal Thomas P. Brophy. More than 20 suspects were questioned, but the officers were convinced today that the man they wanted still was at large.

Trains orders transmitted by telephone cover a larger territory on Class 1 railroad systems of the country than ever before, it is reported.

JOIN THE "AMERICAN" PARTY

TEAM UP with the million and more who make the "American" Party one of the biggest of its kind in the country. Its members may not have the same slant on politics—but they all pledge loyalty to "American."

For the "American" Party is made up of motorists who vote for the American Oil Company's Amoco-Gas and Orange American Gas at The Sign of Greater Values from Maine to Florida.

Amoco-Gas began its career as the original candidate in the special motor fuel field. That was 21 years ago and each succeeding year has won and held the votes of new users. Amoco's history has been all performance—not just promise.

If you want to "look at the record" ask the American Automobile Association, and learn that Amoco-Gas holds more official A.A.A. world's records than any other gas or motor fuel. Amoco-Gas will take you further—smoother—and for less. It costs a bit more per gallon at the pump—but is worth much more—does more.

Or if you're a "regular" party voter, there's Orange American Gas—the "regular" party leader for years, and the best at regular price. Made from a pure petroleum base, it has no added chemicals, leaves no harmful deposits. These features and American's new refinery methods give Orange American Gas a new action that is getting action everywhere.

Join the great "American" Party yourself! Vote at The Sign of Greater Values—from Maine to Florida and inland!

Grown-ups Fail Youth in Need

Ithaca, N. Y., June 8.—"How have grown-ups failed the younger generation?" This question was asked by Mrs. Franklin D. Roosevelt on a recent visit to the New York state college of home economics with Mrs. Henry Morgenthau, Jr., and members of the conference board of nine women's educational organizations in the state. The group met with college staff members to discuss opportunities in home economics education for New York state women.

Answers of the students indicated that more than guidance is needed in high schools because adjustments are most difficult in the "growing-up" period.

Young people should be treated as potential adults rather than as overgrown children by high school authorities, many of the students said. Some stated that high schools should make their pupils more aware of social and economic problems and of their responsibilities as citizens, so they would not have to drift along with little preparation for the future.

Prepare For Jobs

The students said much could be done to prepare for vocations, and expressed the opinion that young people could get along better if they could receive the advice and help of trained practical psychologists who would help them to know what they were fitted for. Many of the girls, also, would like to see more attention given in high school to art, music, and drama so they could make better use of their leisure.

Mrs. Roosevelt pointed out that homes as well as schools can be of much educational value to young men and women.

"The biggest educational chance that parents can give their children is a feeling that everything they do is a chance for living. They can create an interest in and make their children get all kinds of living outside of their own experiences, for the more they deal with the realities of life, the more they will understand and be interested in everything around them, which is a first step toward good citizenship," Mrs. Roosevelt said.

Just As Easy

It's as easy to lift as to lean.
Do a kind act to be mean.
It's as easy to praise as to scold.
To trust and be glad as to mourn.
It's just in this world as you take it.

It's as easy to look up as to frown.
It's as easy to smile as to frown.
It's as easy to laugh as to cry.
Quite as easy to sing as to sigh.
It's just in this world as you make it.

Don't be too fond of your present ideas. Unless you stop growing they will seem silly next year.

He—I always kiss the stamps on your letters, because I know that your lips have touched them.
She—You're wrong there. I moisten the stamp on my dog's nose. It's always wet.

The seemingly demure widow reaches for her second husband with a steamboiler and a grappling hook.

A bathing suit might be described as a small bit of colored material surrounded by sultan.

Orator (shouting)—What I want is reform. I want reform in religion. I want reform in marriage. I want reform in dress. I want—
Voice from the Crowd—Say, Bo, what you want is chloroform.

Women may be the weaker sex, but the average married man constitutes the meeker sex.

Lizzy—What's your favorite illustrated paper, Izzy?
Izzy—The $10 bill is my choice. It's big enough to buy something worth while and it isn't so big that nobody will change it.

The law-abiding citizen is one who obeys all the laws except the ones that don't seem important to him.

Boy Friend—Doesn't it make you girls uneasy to see so many of your friends getting divorced?
Girl Friend—Yes, it's high time we were beginning to marry and get a little allyum ourselves.

The spoils of war are death and dividends, but unfortunately they are not awarded to the same people.

Daughter—Mother, I wish you would stop bossing Daddy around so much.
Mother—What the matter now?
Daughter—Well, every time I get some young man interested in me he gets serious and asks me if I take after you.

People do not amount to much. But we should be patient with them—they are the only people we have.

Reporter of local newspaper (interviewing visiting celebrity)—Do you believe in clubs for women?
Celebrity (judiciously)—Yes, if kindred folks.

The defeated candidates shouldn't think they are making an important discovery. Three or four thousand years ago David learned that "all men are liars."

N. Y. State Lettuce Gets to Market Early

Albany, June 8.—Lettuce—the most widely cultivated of all New York state varieties of salad-plants—has come to market just at the right time to please housewives seeking new warm weather dishes.

Sales of the new outdoor-grown lettuce, as reported by the Department of Agriculture and Markets, indicate its arrival is a welcome relief of meal-planners who have been forced to use hothouse lettuce and shipped-in varieties since last fall.

Figures just made public by the department reveal that 721 carloads of lettuce were shipped from 20 points in New York state last year. Of the 721 total, 505 carloads went to New York city, but Empire State lettuce was of such high quality that Bridgeport and New Haven, Conn., took a total of seven carloads; Washington, D. C., 9 cars; Chicago, 23; Baltimore, Md., 18; Boston, 40; St. Louis, Mo., 8; Newark, N. J., 9; Cincinnati, 8; Philadelphia, 8; Pittsburgh, 6; and Providence, R. I., one.

No less than 250 other cars of mixed vegetables were shipped which contained varying amounts of lettuce.

Floods last summer caused some damage to the crop, especially in the Fulton and Oswego sections. A total of 4,200 acres of lettuce was planted in New York state last year.

While New York state produces an enormous amount of excellent lettuce, for variety the housewife may try romaine, chlorey or American endive, French endive, watercress, Chinese or celery cabbage, escarole, or young tender spinach leaves as appetizing additions to a crisp green salad.

The Bureau of Markets of the Department of Agriculture and Markets advises careful selection of lettuce whenever possible. These market men say the headed type should be firm and heavy; the leaves well balanced, clean and free of burned edges. The "feel" of the leaves should be crisp and fresh, not limp. The Big Boston head should be large, clean and white, and should be avoided if it contains dark spots.

On the other hand, the green loosely formed lettuce heads, if fresh and clean, are desirable from the nutritional point of view—the green outer leaves of lettuce are much richer in Vitamin A than the inner leaves from the same head. So, if you want to benefit from the most valuable portion of lettuce, which ordinarily is used to garnish plates of other foods, eat those decorations. Vitamin A is that which stimulates growth and delays the resistance of the body to disease.

Lettuce grown under natural sunlight contains not only vitamin A, but also is a good source of vitamins C and E, a fair source of B and contains some D. It's a big meal ticket for one food, but lettuce fills the bill.

As an incentive to the use of more green vegetables, fresh from New York state farms, Consumers' Information Service of the Department of Agriculture and Markets, Albany, N. Y., is giving away a booklet entitled "Salads." A post-card request will bring the new salad book containing interesting, new recipes.

FINANCIAL AND COMMERCIAL

New York, June 8 (AP)—Stocks climbed today under the leadership of steel, farm implements and industrial specialties.

A brighter brand of European news, together with continued optimistic economic developments at home, tended to bring a certain amount of cheer into the board-rooms.

The trading pace, after picking up somewhat in the forenoon, slowed near the approach of the final hour. The late tone was firm. Transfers approximated 700,000 shares.

Renewed popularity of the steel stocks reflected, to some extent, an increase of 1.3 points to 59.5 per cent of capacity in the mill operating rate this week. This was the best week's percentage showing since the period of April 20.

Leadest English Village

The Leadest of Leadest English village is Shaville in the Isle of Wight, less than an mile from London town. Its old village, as it is named, is probably known wherever English is read. There was there in 1820 and called for heavily, and when Leadest went there in 1894 he loved it to the point of writing poetry about it.

The Philippines in a few years may be a leading producer of quinine. The first bark was taken from the chinquena trees planted on the southern island of Mindanao. Two thousand trees will be ready for production in two or three years and thousands of quinine are ready for consumption.

BRITAIN JEALOUS OF KING'S ENGLISH

Linguistic Guide Prepared by Noted Academicians.

London.—The Britannic broad-A dignity at the studios of the British Broadcasting company has been restored and "that shocking American accent" has been silenced.

The accent belonged to Robert Bowman, a young Canadian who announced for the Olympic ice hockey games in Garmisch.

He had all the gusto and scale-climbing excitement of the American announcer, replete with "here we are, folks, buddled right down in front in the clear, brisk cold waiting for... oh boy, what a shot! What a shot!... I wish you could have seen it, folks."

It was shocking to the powers of the B. B. C. The next day a flood of letters came to broadcasting house complaining about the American accent.

Must Be Pontifical

So, Bowman, an announcer for 18 months, was gently put off the air, and it was announced that hereafter all broadcasters will maintain the official B. B. C. manner of speaking—pontifical and superior to the sway of any emotion.

But Bowman's departure failed to settle domestic quarrels as to correct pronunciation. As long as a town with a name like Trottscliffe is pronounced like "Trossly" and the natives of Alderwasley call their heath "Allerziele," the tongue-twisting announcers of the British Broadcasting corporation are going to have their troubles.

Every time some announcer calls Dulwich by its simple name of Dulwich a lot of infuriated listeners write to ask why he talks like "some bloum-in' foreigner" and why doesn't he call it "Dullidge" as it should be known.

But it grows worse. When an announcer is talking about the section of Greater London he safely can call it Bromley, just as it is spelled. But if he's talking about Bromley in Kent it's "Bromly." It's the same way with Romford, Kent, and Romford, Essex. One is "Romford" the other "Rumford."

In an effort to standardize pronunciation of place names the B. B. C., after months of research, has issued a little book called "Broadcast English." A special commission of linguists worked months in its preparation.

The place name guide is based on the theory that every town should be known as it is to the residents and it is admitted that there isn't a man to be found in the whole United Kingdom who could pronounce correctly half of the town names.

If there are any to contest the assertion, let them try out their tongue on Ugham, Garboldisham, Hardnuth, Haulthorpe, Piddletrenthide, Punchbowl, or Meola.

Chance Is Rated Chief Factor in Inventions

Oakland, Calif.—The invention of simple, inexpensive gadgets brings the greatest returns to the inventor, according to Albert G. Burns, president of the Inventors' association.

He declares that inventors are divided into two classes—professionals and accidentals. Whichever class the inventor comes under, however, Burns insists that simplicity and cheapness are the two great elements for financial success.

Eighty-five per cent of the patents applied for, he says, are in the accidental class.

Miss Dorothy Lessor of Ada, Okla., as a registered nurse, took care of her sister's baby and invented a dissolvable diaper. She received $25,000 for her family, whose previous income in the oil fields had not exceeded $135 a month.

Household items yield the greatest returns, according to Burns. Toys come next. One of the latter sold 5,000,000 in one year for its inventor, Clark L. Fry of Necedah, Wis., who has 165 patented gadgets to his credit.

Burns insists there is a fortune ahead for the man who invents a scheme for keeping straw hats from turning yellow.

Back To His Desk.—President Roosevelt went back to his desk today to study and act on bills which have finished their legislative course and work on speeches he will make during a 4,000 mile tour starting tonight. Late tonight he will leave on the long trip which will take him to Little Rock, Ark., June 10; Dallas, Tex., June 12 and Vincennes, Ind., June 14 for scheduled addresses.

Returning to Washington June 15, Mr. Roosevelt will be ready for congressional adjournment if the present hope materializes.

Franklin's Epitaph.—After Franklin's death the following epitaph, written by himself when twenty-three years of age, was found among his papers: "The body of B. Franklin, printer, like the cover of an old book, its contents torn out, and stripped of its lettering and gilding, lies here, food for worms. But the work shall not be wholly lost for it will, as he believed, appear once more, in a new and more perfect edition, corrected and amended by the author. He was born January 17, 1706. Died 17—, B. F."

Two Old Objects.—Prague, Czechoslovakia, possesses two of the world's oldest objects. One is a large clock—on the Jewish town hall—whose hands move counter-clockwise and point to Hebrew characters. The other is a giant crucifix—on the Charles bridge—bearing a Jewish inscription. The task of making this cross and effigy of Christ was entrusted upon a Jew in 1406 and he, fasting the work of God, added the words, "in remembrance."—Catholic Weekly.

Beat whites until stiff, add sugar and beat until creamy. Add baking powder. Roughly spread over the fruits. Bake 15 minutes in moderate oven. Serve warm, plain or with cream.

New England Drouth
Boston, June 8 (AP)—A drouth that has parched farm and forest land in large sections of New England entered its 22nd day today with a prospect of showers in parts of southern New England.

Luciano and Eight Convicted by Jury

New York, June 8 (AP)—Attorneys for Charles "Lucky" Luciano, fighting against a possible life sentence, planned today to appeal from the blue-ribbon jury verdict which convicted him on 62 counts of a vice indictment.

Luciano's legal advisers indicated they would attack the constitutionality of the new consolidated indictment law under which their client and eight others were found guilty as the operators of a $12,000,000-a-year compulsory prostitution syndicate.

Each of the nine defendants was convicted on all counts in the indictment and could receive a term of 25 years on each count when sentence is imposed by Supreme Court Justice Philip J. McCook on June 18.

The men convicted with Luciano were David "Bettio," the "Little David" named by state witnesses as No. 2 man in the syndicate; Thomas "Bull" Pennochio, reputed treasurer of the ring; Abie Wahman, characterized as Luciano's go-between with the lower menials in the racket; Jimmy Frederico, Luciano's reputed general manager; Ralph Liguori, accused of sticking up brothels which refused to pay tribute; Benjamin Spiller, Jesse Jacobs and Meyer Berkman.

Four co-defendants, bookers who placed women in houses, had pleaded guilty. David Marcus, alias Miller; Peter Balitzer, alias Harris, and Al Weiner testified for the state. The fourth, Jack Ellenstein, entered a plea of guilty after the prosecution rested.

Thomas E. Dewey, 34-year-old rackets prosecutor, characterized Luciano as New York's Public Enemy No. 1 and declared:

"This, of course, was not a vice trial. It was a racket prosecution. The control of all organized prostitution in New York by the convicted defendants was one of their lesser rackets."

Hits Young Girl On Roller Skates

Archie Krom, 44, of Ulster Park, has reported to the sheriff's office that while driving through St. Remy, Saturday night about 8:30, he struck little Olga Terpening, injuring her about the face and legs.

In reporting the accident, Mr. Krom stated that the girl on roller skates, skated in front of his car as he drove along the highway near the Ellsworth house in St. Remy. He has 19 years experience driving cars, according to his report.

The injuries of Miss Terpening were listed as minor cuts and bruises on the face and legs.

It looks more and more as if Europe is "kaput" and modern civilization is about to take its last stand in North America.

There Is Something More —than just paper and ink in good printing

... even the addition of excellent workmanship doesn't complete the picture.

... every printed thing that bears your name is a part of your business or professional personality.

... what it says; how it says it; its appearance, are all of utmost importance.

... and the little things are just as important as the big ones.

We are proud of the class of institutions that pass their printing and advertising problems to us.

On The Radio Day By Day

By C. E. BUTTERFIELD

Time is Daylight Saving.

New York, June 8 (AP).—Under the schedule as finally determined upon, but still subject to possible change, the networks are to begin their broadcasts of the 1936 edition of the Republican National Conventions at 11:30 a. m. Tuesday. This will give them a half-hour before the convention time of the opening session for various vocal preliminaries. They are to stay on the air until a recess is taken to approximately 10 p. m., when Senator Frederick Steiwer is to deliver the keynote address. These broadcast times for both day and night sessions represent a change from the originally announced schedule, the first being a half-hour earlier and the latter an hour later.

Joe Louis and Max Schmeling in training for their heavyweight fight June 18, will be the subject of some WJZ-NBC broadcasts this week. Transmission from Louis camp at Lakewood, N. J., set for Thursday, will be divided into the periods, 3:15 and 6 p. m., while on Saturday at 2:30 the Schmeling camp at Napanoch, N. Y., will be on the air. Rep. J. J. O'Connor, New York Democrat and chairman of the House Rules Committee, is to tell about "This Congress" in the WJZ-NBC Radio Forum tonight. WJZ-NBC did have scheduled for 10 tonight the commencement address of Gov. Landon at the University of Kansas, but it was cancelled at the governor's request.

TENNESSEE IN FAREWELL TO SPEAKER BYRNS

Tennessee paid last tribute to Speaker of the House Joseph W. Byrns with services attended by President Roosevelt, Secretary Hull and other national dignitaries. An estimated 40,000 persons lined the route of the funeral procession in Nashville. Pallbearers are shown carrying the casket to the Auditorium for services. (Associated Press Photo.)

NATION HONORS LATE SPEAKER

Police snapped to attention as the casket containing the body of Speaker Joseph W. Byrns was borne quietly into the nation's domed capitol for state funeral services. Ostentation was avoided at the express command of Speaker Byrns' successor, William B. Bankhead, in deference to Byrns' own wish. (Associated Press Photo.)

Charles A. Shultis Is Now District Deputy By Thieves in City

Jacob C. Klinek, grand master of Masons in the state of New York, has appointed Charles A. Shultis of Preston Hollow district deputy grand master of the Greene-Elster Masonic District. He succeeds P. H. Carey of this city who served as district deputy grand master last year. The grand master has also appointed Philip Elting of this city as a member of the committee on state endowments.

We think there is too much racketeering in this country; but according to the Spivak's "Terror Over Europe," the biggest racketeer in the world is German Nazism.

The American Oil Company gas station on North Front street was broken into last night by thieves. Entrance was obtained by breaking a glass in the window in the toilet in the rear of the station. As far as a hasty check showed nothing of value had been stolen. The job was similar to that pulled off at the Muller gas station over the Washington avenue viaduct, just outside the city, where $150 in bills was stolen.

Cyrus Hall McCormick, former head of the International Harvester Company, who has just died, did more than any other American to make farm life tolerable for boys.

ANN HARDING REACHES ENGLAND

The Holland Society Of Ulster Dines

of the mayors and other municipal officers of the state when he had received many compliments on the beauty of the city and its hospitality.

Mayor Heitselman said that he believed it would be a good idea to organize some kind of a society or organization, not to exploit, but to bring to the attention of the world the historic past of Kingston and Ulster county and the glorious scenery, the finest in the world.

Mr. Elting introduced.

Toastmaster Bruyn said that the idea expressed by Mayor Heitselman was a good one and that the Holland Society would be willing to do all that it could to assist such an organization as proposed. He said that no man was more responsible for Ulster county being debt-free than Philip Elting, who was one of the founders of the Ulster County Branch of the Holland Society.

Mr. Elting said that it was well to recall the history and to pay honor to the people who came and carved out a home in the wilderness of the new country. It was a good thing to keep alive our memories of the past. He said that he was proud of the history of Ulster county, and was proud of the land of his fathers. We should be proud of our country and let us praise it up, and more than that let us help to make it an even better country.

"I am going to Cleveland tomorrow," said Mr. Elting, "to help name the next president of the United States, and I consider that quite an honor." (laughter and applause). Mr. Elting said that he was a firm believer in two political parties, of about equal strength, so that one party could keep an eye on the other. If things were not run right politically it was our duty to see to it that they were run right, he said, and if we find that the party that happens to be in power is not running things right it is our duty to kick them out.

Mr. Elting said it was the duty of every citizen to become a member of some political party, and then see to it that it is run right. He paid a compliment to Mayor Heitselman and said that the mayor had given the city an efficient administration. "I am glad to hear our mayor praise our city and county," said Mr. Elting, "even if he did not give me any credit" (laughter).

Mr. Elsworth speaks. County Attorney Roscoe Elsworth, who had become a member of the society during the past year, was introduced and spoke briefly, stating that he considered it an honor to be a member of the society.

Mrs. D. Brown Elected New Superintendent

Mrs. David E. Brown, of Newark, N. J., the new superintendent of the Middle Atlantic Conference of the Congregational and Christian Churches is the first woman to be a superintendent of churches in an evangelical denomination.

The office of superintendent among the evangelical churches is successor to that of bishop. The elimination of the bishop's sacerdotal authority from the general administrators or executives of the churches took place as part of the Protestant Reformation so that none of the evangelical or "reformed" church of today, whether congregational or presbyterian in their form of government, have bishops. While the larger bodies of Methodists in this country term themselves "episcopal" and used the title "bishop," the technical title is "general superintendent," and the ascription "right reverend" is never applied.

At the biennial meeting of the General Council of the united churches to be held at Mt. Holyoke College, South Hadley, Mass., June 16 to 23, she will have an important place as one of the thirty-seven superintendents who are the executive directors of the fifty-three conferences into which the 6,350 churches of the denomination are grouped. In some cases two or three smaller conferences are grouped under one superintendent.

The Middle Atlantic Conference comprises ninety churches reporting 23,518 communicants, and a constituency of 70,500 in New Jersey, Delaware, Maryland and the District of Columbia.

WON'T TAKE SECOND PLACE

Landonites Confident On Eve Of Convention

Landon looked eagerly to the arrival today of a new factor in the convention picture—Senator Borah of Idaho. They recalled that Vandenberg and Borah had talked things over only recently. Each presumably knows the other's mind.

Knox vs. Landon.

There were rumors, which could not be verified but were accepted as gospel by sources hostile against Landon, that Col. Frank Knox of Illinois would show up here tomorrow and add his bit to the cause.

Again the presence of Herbert Hoover for an address Wednesday night was not expected by the "anti's" to make the task of Kansas enthusiasts any easier.

Departure of John D. M. Hamilton the Landon manager late last night with an overnight bag prompted conjecture in the corridors where he might have gone to meet Mr. Hoover beforehand.

Some sources looked for definite breaks before the day ended. Various state delegations were called into caucus to decide their position and to pick committees for important policy-making posts.

Despite a situation unprecedented in recent party history, with 841 of the 1,000 delegates uninstructed and no candidate's claim verging closely on the 502 required to nominate, the consensus was that state leaders would go far to decide the ultimate balances in the convention.

This seemed to apply particularly to the onrush of demands for and protests against a plank for a constitutional amendment to empower states to enact minimum wage legislation. William Allen White and others among the Landon backers have supported proposals like that, and Mr. Hoover has agreed, if such a step is necessary. Vandenberg and Borah took the stand that these suggestions have no place in party considerations at this time.

Second only to the possibility of an avowed "stop Landon" coalition among his rivals, the intensifying disputes over this and other basic platform planks generated apprehension among those bent on harmony.

Vice President Not Foremost

For the time at least, the subject of the vice presidential nomination did not appear to be foremost.

The prevalent opinion, evidently, was that the slate must finally wait, and to an extent be dependent upon, the nature of the platform. A dilemma for the builders became apparent in the diverse viewpoints among the arrivals.

Should it be directed largely toward western progressive support that went for Roosevelt, or should it aim more for anti-New Deal Democrats?

George Moses, former Senator from New Hampshire, and the Knox manager, Edward A. Hayes, said they counted 261 votes for their man.

Carl Buchmann, heading the Borah-for-President committee, said the senator had a minimum of 100 to start with and some 50 more in sight.

Michigan's 38 and Iowa's 22 were being counted respectively for Senators Vandenberg and Dickinson, contributing to the total by which the "irreconcilables"—as Moses calls them—hoped to hold off any stampede.

Denials of any anti-Landon coalition have come from the camps of all the less-discussed possibilities; but it is known that conversations on tactics to halt the Kansas have taken place between some members of the factions.

The intent, it was explained, is to have every potential nominee put forward and urged to build his voice as long as he can.

Reminders that much can happen to alter the outlook in the 48 hours or more remaining before the nominations will be in order came from both the Knox and Borah camps. Whatever substance there was to the predictions had to await developments.

High Spots on Convention Program

Cleveland, June 8 (AP)—Here are the high spots on the Republican national convention program (Time is eastern standard).

Tuesday, 11 a. m.—Henry P. Fletcher, national committee chairman, to call convention to order. Election of temporary officers and election of committees to follow.

Tuesday 8 p. m.—Keynote speech, by Senator Steiwer of Oregon.

Wednesday, 11 a. m.—Reports from rules and credentials committee, and action on them. (Election of permanent chairman and an address by him).

Wednesday, 8 p. m.—Talk by former President Herbert Hoover, report of platform committee, and debate and vote on platform.

Thursday, 11 a. m.—Nomination speeches for President; balloting for President.

How long the convention will last after this session depends upon the length of the fight for the presidential and vice-presidential nominations. Speeches for vice-presidential nominees will start as soon as a presidential candidate is chosen. After the candidates are selected, the only remaining business is the appointment of a notification committee.

Display Pictures Of Max Schmeling

A. H. Lipkar, Fair street photographer, is displaying a number of pictures he took recently at the Napauch training camp of Max Schmeling, in his window and that of the Hyman clothing store on North Front street.

"I'm on the staff of Schmeling again," Abe told a reporter today, and Joe Jacobs said his shots were the finest batch he has seen from any of the news saps. "You know," says Abe, "they call the cameras 'Lipkar' and the official photographer when Max trained at Greenhill Lodge."

Lipkar has shown "the ex-world champion with all of the celebrities who visited the camp last week, and also has Joe Morris and Bill Broadell, local politicians, who, despite warnings to the contrary, are friendly with Schmeling even though the Black Legion fattened him in a workup at Greenhill. It's all in the same way."

HOLLYWOOD SIGHTS & SOUNDS

By ROBBIN COONS

HOLLYWOOD—William Shea's first job of cutting a motion picture was not exactly a huge success. It came in one of his early years in the picture business. He knew not one thing about the job of assembling strips of celluloid into a complete film, but he said he did because he was ambitious and he knew the director was tired.

"Billy" was embarrassed and the director was unhappy to say the least, when they saw the result on the screen. He had done everything backwards. Still, all was not lost. The director, it seemed, hated to see a potential cutter go to waste. He taught "Billy" how it was really done.

No such embarrassment attended "Billy" Shea's recent debut as a director. For nearly 25 years he had been watching pictures in the making. A tactician and rather solemn little Irishman, he had learned from the sidelines what such men as D. W. Griffith, Frank Borzage and Ernst Lubitsch did with actors and scenes and situations.

Cutting Trains Maestro

From his own experience in the cutting room, where Lubitsch, Borzage, Frank Capra, Josef von Sternberg and Lewis Milestone had taken their directorial training, "Billy" had learned all about such filmic essentials as tempo and feeling.

He set to work on "Owl of the Ozarks," the new Virginia Fielder feature, with the confidence born of long mental experience in directing pictures.

Shea came into pictures quite casually, as one did in those earlier days. He was a bellboy in a New York hotel when a stranger asked him if he would mind wearing his uniform as a favor before a movie camera—inducement $2.

He did not mind, and that occasion nor on the several later occasions when he was recalled. He always collected.

Thrown into association with cameras in this manner, he learned to take "still" pictures. He began doing this for a living. And then came his debut as a cutter.

"Directors Born, Not Made"

For those ambitions to direct, Shea advises the cutting room.

"A good cutter," he says, "has become an economist in the field of story values. He knows nothing, he recognizes the essential position of a little gesture, a fleeting expression on the face, in the smooth flow of a narrative. A good cutter can't miss these things and remains a good cutter."

The one additional thing he must have in order to direct, ability to convey his ideas to the players, either in words or by example.

The cutting room as a path to directing is still open, he says. The first job pays little and is routine. But from splicing raw film to becoming an assistant cutter, then a cutter, finally a director, is a climb that has been taken by many of today's leading picture-makers.

Mythical Little

The mythical Little was a female and spirit of Celtic mythology, rumored to be a little demon, traditionally regarded as a night demon, attacking children. In Jewish and medieval popular belief she was held to have been the first wife of Adam. In the department of the Middle Ages, Little was a female witch, and appears as such in Goethe's "Faust."

Scandal in Rome

On the old bridge, in Frankfurt-am-Main, the Rhine, stands a medieval stone cross with a figure of Christ. A rock over the cross, explained by the architect, showed the scene of the first living thing crossing the bridge.

Flowers Before Fools

At meals in Austria there are neither knives nor forks, eating being done with the right hand. In time, we are told, one develops the knack of forming the incredibly hot stick of food—made some time since ancient little balls of food—in particular the official one—without burning the fingers.

Balyasky-Kahn

The Rev. and Mrs. M. Kahn of 98 Hasbrouck avenue announce the marriage of their daughter, Anna, to Rabbi M. Balyasky of Poland. While in Europe Mrs. Balyasky visited relatives in Lithuania, Poland, France and England, arriving on the Queen Mary last Monday. The marriage took place in Poland.

Schmidt-Maroon

Miss Agnes Maroon, formerly of Kingston, daughter of Joseph J. Maroon, and John B. Schmidt of New York city were married June 6 at a nuptial mass by the Rev. Paul B. Ward of the Paulist Fathers. Father Ward was assisted by Father Sullivan and Father Owen McBride. The music during the mass was under the direction of Stephen Elizon. The ceremony was performed in the Church of St. Paul the Apostle, 53th street and Columbus avenue, New York city.

Miscellaneous Shower

Port Ewen, June 8.—Several girls of the telephone office gave Mrs. Earl Kirm a surprise miscellaneous shower at the home of Mrs. Gertrude Beecher Monday evening, June 1. A very pleasant evening was spent and dainty refreshments were served. Mrs. Kirm received beautiful gifts. The following friends were present: Mrs. Alice Van Loan, Mrs. Mary Brown, Miss Agnes Reis, Miss Margaret Shea, Miss Elizabeth Blass, Miss Edna Rhinehart and Mrs. Gertrude Beecher.

License to Wed

New York, June 6.—Oskar Ott, 44, a farmer and resident of Kingston, and Mrs. Martha Boehle, 36, a widow, of 155 Bleecker street, Brooklyn, obtained a license to wed at the Kings County Municipal Building here this morning and said they would be married at once in the City Chapel by a deputy city clerk. Mr. Ott, son of Franz and Katherine G. Ott, was born in Mannheim, Germany. His first wife is dead. Mrs. Boehle, daughter of Richard and Ida Steyer Hoepner, was born in Germany.

Sunday School Picnic

Mt. Marion, June 8.—The Willing Workers' Sunday school class held its annual picnic at North Lake Park above Haines Falls on June 4. Husbands and friends were invited, making a total of 41 who attended. Hamburg steak was cooked over the fireplaces and a bountiful supper spread and eaten amid much fun and gaiety. A beautiful moon over the lake and camp grounds made it light enough to play games and have a jolly good time. The picnic reluctantly broke up about 10:30 with the singing of the class song. Everyone declared they had had the best time ever and hoped for more picnics in the future.

Disorders in Spain

Madrid, June 8 (AP).—Continued widespread strikes and political disorders plagued Spain again today, resulting in the death of a policeman and the wounding of numerous workers.

The major strikes affected more than 100,000 peasants in Malaga; 50,000 Austrian miners and 40,000 construction workers in Seville.

The policeman was slain at Seville during a Communist demonstration. A general strike was declared at Lerida in protest against the failure of authorities to satisfy workers' demands for unemployment relief.

19 on Trial

Kiev, U. S. S. R., June 8 (AP).—Nineteen officials and employees of the Ukrainian Council of Labor Unions went on trial today charged with embezzling 5,000,000 rubles ($1,000,000) in state funds.

The defendants also are accused of stealing free passes to sanatoriums for tubercular children and orphans, and selling them.

Slot Machine Arrests

State Trooper Ray Dunn of Phoenixia made two arrests Saturday afternoon for slot machines. Dean Elwyn, who operates a diner in Woodstock, paid $10 fine for having one in his place, and Sam Levine, general store proprietor at Olivera was fined a like amount.

Justice Wallace Shultis fined Elwyn and Justice Theron Townsend of Shandaken, Levine.

Ford Fined $5

David Ford, 36, of Bushnellville, was fined $5 by Justice of the Peace Harvey Clancy in Phoenixia this morning, when he was arraigned on a charge of public intoxication. Ford was arrested by State Trooper Ray Dunn at Alabam. Saturday night, when he allegedly created a disturbance at Clarence Jones's place. Ford was jailed until this morning.

Clubs and Stoves

Tonawanda, N. Y., June 8 (AP).—Strikers picketing the Remington Rand plant here used clubs and stones today in a fight to turn back about 100 men the company tried to rush through their lines and into the plant. For a few minutes there was wild disorder, as police and deputy sheriffs used their clubs in an effort to stop the battle.

About The Folks

The Rev. C. L. Palmer supplied the pulpit of the Friends Church, Cliftondale, Sunday morning.

Mrs. Lottie E. Jones of Washington, D. C., is spending two weeks' vacation at her home, 161 Wall street.

Leah Gelsier, local agent for Master Finch Polish, has gone to Boston for a few days and will resume business upon her return.

Mrs. Humphrey Jones has returned to her home on Wrentham street after spending two weeks with relatives at Margaretville.

Mr. and Mrs. Arthur Schumaker and daughter, Jewel, Marjorie and Marion, and friend, Cyril Foley of Hoboken, N. J., were the guests today of Mr. and Mrs. James C. Legg and family, 55 Smith avenue.

A daughter, Margaret Bertha, has been born to Mr. and Mrs. George Relyea of Rosendale. Mrs. Relyea was formerly Miss Mildred Markle of Kingston. The attending physician was Dr. L. E. Sanford.

WAWARSING

Wawarsing, June 8.—Mrs. Edna Jones of Waterbury, Conn., spent the week-end with her brother and sister-in-law, Mr. and Mrs. John Geary.

Miss Helen Freer of Kerhonkson was a week-end guest of her brother-in-law and sister, Mr. and Mrs. Ralph Lyman.

Donald Davis of Lake Mohawk was a dinner guest of Gordon Churchwell, Jr., Tuesday evening.

Miss Thelma Townsend of Vassar Hospital, Poughkeepsie, is visiting her parents, Mr. and Mrs. Allan Townsend, Sr.

Miss Doris Geary spent Friday night with her sister, Mrs. Oscar Mackey, of Kerhonkson.

Miss Amy Terwilliger spent Sunday with her grandmother of Red Hill.

Mr. and Mrs. Asa Gray entertained their daughter, Miss Ruby Gray, of Glens Falls and their son, Frank Gray, of Boston, Mass., over the week-end.

Pierce Moore has employment at Lake Mohawk for the summer season.

Little Patricia Ann Sherman spent Sunday with her grandfather and grandmother, Mr. and Mrs. Calvin Mertine.

Miss Irene McDonough of Kingston spent Saturday with the Misses Albert Davis and Ella Churchwell.

Miss Evelyn Mertine entertained a number of her young friends Friday evening at her home.

Jack Lapoit visited his parents, Mr. and Mrs. Andrew Lapoit, of Nanoch, on Saturday.

KRIEPELBUSH

Krippebush, June 8.—There will be a good will social at the home of Mrs. Alice Van Den Burg Thursday evening, June 11. Supper will be served. Proceeds for benefit of M. E. Church. The public is most cordially invited.

Twenty-two from this place attended the house reception at the home of the Rev. and Mrs. Strivings.

Everyone had an enjoyable evening. Children's Day will be observed next Sunday evening at 8 o'clock. The public is most cordially invited.

Mr. and Mrs. Irwin H. Barley of Ellenville spent Sunday with Mr. and Mrs. Claude Christians and family.

Mr. and Mrs. Howard Van Aken entertained relatives from the city recently.

Boos and Jeers

Syracuse, N. Y., June 8 (AP).—Striking Remington Rand employees booed and jeered today when a group of workers returned to their jobs in the company's Syracuse plant, closed for three weeks because of labor troubles.

There was no disorder. Company officials said "quite a few" returned to their jobs. Strike leaders said "less than a couple of dozen" went back to work.

All Day Quilting

Mt. Marion, June 8.—There will be an all day quilting at the home of Mrs. Abram Bogert, Sr., in Lake Katrine on Wednesday, June 10.

With the approach of summer these United States are about to be invaded by an enemy that will cause its people much annoyance. It is not a force armed with guns and poison gases. This enemy will be a horde of insects—mosquitoes, flies and other winged creatures that invade homes unless they are properly protected with barriers of screen cloth.

Another of those childishly simple Russian ideas is to curb divorce by making every successive separation cost more than the previous one.

TEACH DRIVING TO CUT MOTOR DEATHS

High School Courses Urged as Result of Survey.

New York.—Spread of automobile driving and safety courses in high schools as a means of cutting down the high death rate from motor mishaps is advocated as a result of a national survey conducted on the subject by the Women's Home Companion, which makes a stirring appeal to parents to insist on safety education for their children.

Parents are also urged to back up what can be taught in schools spurred on by the realization that "at the present rate, one out of every three children faces the probability of death or maiming from motor accidents in the course of a lifetime."

"Schools are doing far too little to teach safe driving," the survey reveals. "In fact most of them give no automobile safety training. When they do try to teach highway safety, they often find themselves handicapped by having to offset the poor influence of parents. As children approach driving age they should be taught in the high schools, by experienced and qualified persons, how to drive safely. There is no good reason for not giving driving and highway safety instruction to every high school student in the country. The essence of the bad driving problem would be attacked, for not only do the records show that drivers of high school age are poor operators, but from our high schools will come most of the future operators of motor-cars."

Action in Nine States.

"Steps have been taken toward providing driving instruction for high school students in nine states, the District of Columbia and the city of New York. Several of the states have been doing it for some time. In New Jersey, where 50 high schools provide this training, credit is allowed to students taking the safety courses.

"In the Garfield high school, Akron, Ohio, there is a student Motor Traffic club which studies the difference between highway conditions before and after enactment of traffic laws.

"There should be more of that sort of thing.

"The most effective instruments for improving the situation, so far as the younger generations are concerned, seem to be education and example. The latter is of first importance to parents because with operation of motor vehicles, as with other phases of family life, the child is deeply influenced by what the parent does. If you are careless and reckless with your car, you cannot expect your children to drive much differently. If you scoff at traffic laws your child cannot help agreeing with you that such laws are silly and not to be taken seriously. If you are a parent who tells your boy or girl to watch out the rear window for motorcycle officers while you challenge death by stepping hard on the throttle, you have no right to expect youth to be law-abiding.

Death Toll 36,000.

"Approximately 36,000 persons were killed in this country by automobiles in 1934, an all-time record! During that year one human being was killed by automobiles in the United States every 15 minutes, and somebody injured every 31 seconds!

"No further statistics are necessary. If only every parent in the country would think about these simple things! If they were any kind of men or women they would do something to remedy the tragic situation. Once a sufficient number of parents realize what it means, some sort of solution will be forthcoming.

"Members of parent-teacher associations, and those parents who try to be an influence for good in their communities through service clubs or other organizations, can do a great deal to arouse other parents to action.

"People are not behind the vehicular traffic laws. Until they support these laws, or substitute new ones which are universally popular as well as effective, there will be little slackening in the fatality rate. They will not back up the laws until they are willing to obey them, and they will not do that until they are awake to the murderous potentialities of automobiles which are not operated by safety-conscious drivers."

Price of Chewed-Off Ear Fixed at $2,031 by Judge

San Claire, Wis.—Holding that "a man should not be able to bite off another man's ear and get out of paying for it," Judge Patrick Stone in the United States District court here granted judgment of $2,031 against Carl Christensen by George W. Farrell, tavern proprietor, who sued Christensen for biting off his right ear in an altercation.

Christensen's attorney argued that his client did not bite Farrell's ear off intentionally but Judge Stone implied his doubts as to anyone being able to bite off another's ear unintentionally and added: "Two thousand dollars is not a very large amount to pay for an ear these days and you couldn't have more for less."

An Easy Order to Fill

Dallas, Texas.—A middle-aged English (Klan) woman, who doesn't like the climate there, wrote Mayor George Bennett asking him to help her find a husband. She wants a man who is "a good dresser, a gentleman, a Mason and Odd Fellow, good looking, of independent means, and between the ages of sixty-five and seventy."

Girls from 14 states and three foreign countries were awarded diplomas by Mrs. M. B. Wilson, principal of Northfield Seminary, East Northfield, Mass., at the school's 132nd commencement exercises held in the Northfield Auditorium June 8.

Dr. John Macnamara, professor of pathology of London, delivered the commencement address.

Interment will be in Woodstock cemetery.

The funeral of Mrs. Stanley Hood, who died on Wednesday last, was held from the parlors of James V. Halloran, 44 Broadway, Saturday afternoon at 1:30 thence to the Emmanuel Baptist Church where at 2 o'clock services were held with the Rev. L. A. Weaver officiating. Friday evening at 8:30 the Fishermen of Galilee led by their most worthy ruler, Mrs. Minnie Malin, assembled at the funeral parlors and conducted their impressive funeral ritual. There were a number of beautiful floral tributes from a host of sorrowing relatives and friends. The large funeral cortege was accompanied to Witwyck cemetery by the Rev. Mr. Weaver, who conducted the committal service at the grave.

Mrs. Margaretta D. Kirchner Boice, wife of Horace Boice, of the Plank Road, town of Ulster, died at the Kingston Hospital early Saturday evening following a short illness. Besides her husband Mrs. Boice leaves to mourn her loss two daughters, Olive and Vivian, and two sons, Ralph and LeRoy. All at home, her parents, Mr. and Mrs. William C. Kirchner, two brothers, George W. Kirchner of Brooklyn and Frank L. Kirchner of Portland, Me. She was a member of Trinity Lutheran Church and the Ladies' Aid of the church. Funeral service will be held at the Kukuk Memorial Funeral Home, 167 Tremper avenue, on Tuesday afternoon at 2 o'clock. Interment will be in Witwyck cemetery. Friends may call at the funeral home this evening from 7 to 9 o'clock.

The home of Charles Hutton at 199 East Chester street was filled for the funeral services of his father, William B. Hutton, well known citizen and engineer on the U. & D. R. R., on Saturday afternoon. The esteem in which he was held was testified to not only by the large number of relatives and friends who attended the services, but by the profuse display of beautiful floral remembrances which blanketed the casket at the home. The services were in charge of the Rev. C. B. Smith, formerly pastor of the Warts Street Baptist Church, and the Rev. Clarence E. Brown, the present pastor. Mr. Smith spoke of his high Christian character and of his devotion to his family, church and friends. The casket bearers were Eugene Reilly, Frank Reiskie, Myron Van Buren, John Whelan, George Burnett and Matthew Schoonmaker. All fellow railroad employees. The interment was in the family plot in Montrose cemetery, where the Rev. Mr. Smith conducted the committal services.

Funeral services which were attended by a large number of friends and relatives, took place this morning for Marguerite Darcy in St. Mary's Church, when a high Mass of requiem was offered for the repose of her soul by the Rev. William H. Kennedy. Prior to the Mass, the large procession of cars departed from the Darcy home at 31 Brewster street to the church, where the services were held and a large number of people had gathered to pay homage to one whom was admired and respected. The music of the Mass was sung by the Children's Choir of St. Mary's, with Theodore Riccoboni at the organ, and John Cullum as soloist. Following the requiem the cortege proceeded to St. Mary's cemetery, where in the family plot the remains were laid to rest, as the Rev. B. C. Roth pronounced the final absolution. The casket which was resting in the home was surrounded by many beautiful floral tributes sent by devoted relatives and friends. A number of Mass cards were also placed nearby. Among those who called to view the remains was a large delegation of the Rosary Society, of which Miss Darcy was a member, and retired the Rosary for the repose of her soul, and prayers of friends and associates of the family. The casket bearers were James John and William Dixon, Robert and William Steuding and Robert Cullum.

Lights of New York

by L. L. STEVENSON

Mike Bones, at the age of twenty, knows what it means to be a man without a country. He can't get a steady job because he can't supply any satisfactory background. He can't get on the relief rolls because he can't show that he is a citizen. He can't be deported because there is no proof that he is a national of any country. So he exists by doing what odd jobs he can find as he drifts from city to city. When things become too involved and hunger too acute, he turns himself over to the police in the hope that they will find some solution for his problems and with the knowledge that they will feed him. He has done that twice. In both instances he was fed. Once he was taken to Ellis Island and thought he was really going somewhere. But the immigration officers didn't know where to send him so they didn't return him to New York. Recently he surrendered again and was brought into court on a charge of vagrancy. The magistrate suspended sentence with a promise to attempt to find a job for him.

It was at the court hearing that the young man's story became known. He might have been born in Warsaw or Shanghai, he said. Or he might have been born in the United States. His mother never would tell him and naturally, he had no memory of that particular event. He saw his mother last a year ago in Texas. He doesn't know where she is now since they never correspond. His sister once lived in Juarez, Mexico, and he thinks she is now living in Cuba. He doesn't know what became of his father but he does remember traveling with his parents in Japan, China, Poland, Russia, Siberia, Africa, South America, Mexico and the United States. Now he'd like to settle down somewhere and rest after all his wanderings.

Bones came into the United States after a visit with his sister in Juarez. He said he merely walked across the bridge at El Paso. An immigration officer asked him if he was a citizen and he replied, "Sure." That was all the formality of his entry into the country where he is a man without a country.

In this matter of fact, machine age, there is still some sentiment. That was demonstrated recently at Pelham, one of the commuting towns where many who labor in New York by day sleep by night and putter in their gardens over the week-end. For almost 40 years, a trolley car has banged between the New Haven station and Travers Island. The line is two miles in length but so full of bumps, passengers travel just about as much up-and-down as they do here-and-there. For some time, the trolley company has been seeking to substitute shiny new buses for the old car. Recently an election was held on the matter and the buses lost out by a vote of about five to one.

While there was the matter of fare involved—the trolley ride costs a nickel—and the proposed charge for the buses was a dime—sentiment can really be held to have been the victor. In the first place, there are Louis Mattes, the skipper of the car, and his relief man, Eddie Glaser, who have been with the line years and years. They know every patron and are always ready to do a favor, even to leaving a call for someone who isn't on hand for his regular trip. Naturally Louis and Eddie have their friends and they turned out to vote. Oh yes, something else. The old car was Fontaine Fox's inspiration for his "The Toonerville trolley that meets all the trains." And that had something to do with it, too. So instead of putting on buses, the company will spend about $20,000 leveling some of the bumps.

Bus top eavesdropping. "She said she'd call him a skeptic only she never saw him with a scepter whatever that might be."

A gentleman came in with an attractive proposition to make three or four hairs grow where only one grows now. There was a guarantee attached to it and everything. There were also before-and-after photographs which showed Caesar gradually going into hair production and ending with a good crop. Unfortunately, however, the salesman leaned over while placing these photos on the desk and thus exposed a plain-top pate. So he had to fix up no sale.

Barber for 72 Years
Bars Women From Shop
Melrose, Mass.—No Women Allowed—reads a sign in shop-keeper's window of William T. Kirmse's barber shop.
Kirmse, a barber for 72 years and chairman to the title of the oldest active barber in point of service in Massachusetts, bars women from his shop because "they are only 25 and 30-year-old customers." "Each one brings a crowd, monopolizing the shop and driving away better trade."

New Comfort for Those Who Wear False Teeth

Do you need you feel uncomfortable wearing false teeth? Perhaps a newly invented device, consisting of a small, white, rubbery band, which is worn over the false teeth, will give you the comfort and security of your natural teeth.

MODES OF THE MOMENT

Knitted frocks make practical summer outfits.

Liana Merwin

The new knitted frocks are ideally suited to summer travel and vacation days, for they can withstand the hard usage of a motor trip or emerge unscathed from tightly packed trunks.

The newest nubby, knitted frocks are two-piece models with smartly trimmed overblouses topping plain skirts. Hand crochet, felt, patent leather and crocheted buttons are a few of the mediums used for trimming in such smart shades as turquoise, maize, natural, coral or sky blue.

The two-piece model sketched at right is of "snowflake" knit in white nubby flecks on a background of turquoise blue. It has a crocheted edged neckline and uses crocheted buttons on the belt. Felt accents trim the neckline and belt, while hand-fashioning edges the hem of the plain skirt.

Another nubby, snowflake knit of different theme is shown at left. The over-blouse of this model is designed with short, puffed sleeves and trimmed with a neckline bow and belt of patent leather.

Home Institute HOW TO READ PALMS

Like to read palms? Just learn the meaning of the lines and "mounts," or raised pads on the palm! It's easy.

See the Life Line in the sketch? If it forks up near the index finger, numbered 1, that means success through ambition; if it forks down near the Mount of Luna, much travel.

Is that Heart Line very long? Beware of jealousy! Head Line runs straight across the palm? Great prudence. Fate Line branches off toward the third finger? Success in art.

Now for the mounts. Many straight lines across the Mount of Venus, parallel to wrist, show laziness. A small Mount of Luna—realism, coldness, lack of imagination. A star (lines crossing like wheel spokes) on Jupiter means great success. A star on Saturn—disappointment, adventure, danger. A big Mount of Saturn shows a serious nature.

A large Mount of Apollo reveals an easy victim to flattery. A small one, no artistic ability. A small Mount of Mercury shows lack of wit. Squares, chains and islands all have their meaning. Perfectly simple to read your palm with the help of our 40-page illustrated booklet, PALMISTRY AND ASTROLOGY. Both subjects brightly treated. Clear diagrams, interesting interpretations. Fun for your next party!

Send 15c for our booklet, PALMISTRY AND ASTROLOGY, to Kingston Daily Freeman, Home Institute, 109 West 19th Street, New York, N. Y. Write plainly your NAME, ADDRESS, and the NAME of booklet.

Today

Broadway: "13 Hours by Air." Great goings-on aboard a passenger plane en route from Newark to the coast take place during the eventful life of the feature film at the Broadway. Told in the "Grand Hotel" manner, it brings the lives of the passengers and pilots into play with one another and as the giant plane dromes westward, the audience learns that a sensational jewel robbery took place shortly before the plane took to the air and the finger of suspicion points at the blonde girl riding in the plane. Excitement mounts rapidly from then on with murder, storms and a few romantic interludes thrown in for good measure. Good dialogue and smooth direction all help to make this play a melodramatic entertainment feature to see and enjoy. Fred MacMurray, Joan Bennett, Binnie Barnes, Brian Donlevy, Zazu Pitts, Ruth Donnelly, Grace Bradley and John Howard are featured.

Kingston: "The Country Beyond." "The First Baby." The dog and the cat, who scored such a hit in "Call of the Wild," is given a new show to work in during the filming of this story of the Northwest Mounted Police written by the late James Oliver Curwood. Filled with human situations, with evil men of the north country, with fights, misunderstandings and a love story of great simplicity, the picture offers Rochelle Hudson, Paul Kelly, Robert Kent, Alan Dinehart and Buck, running off with most of the acting honors. "The First Baby" is a tale of domestic bliss and adjustment but it spends most of its time explaining the difficulties which are sure to plague a newly married couple. For instance, there is the girl's family who insist the couple live with them and there is the usual misunderstanding as to faithfulness between the new bride and groom. There are moments of enjoyable humor in this show and a fine cast includes Johnny Downs, Shirley Deane, Dixie Dunbar, Jane Darwell and Gene Lockhart.

Orpheum: "The Prisoner of Shark Island." A tragic page in the history of the United States is brought to light in this historic tragedy of a doctor who is sent to an American penal island for alleged complicity in the slaying of Abraham Lincoln. Although completely innocent, the unfortunate doctor nearly dies in the horror of the prison. It's a stark, realistic drama, a combination of history and fiction that becomes a powerful motion picture with Warner Baxter starred and supported by a brilliant cast. One of the year's better films.

Tomorrow

Broadway: Same. Kingston: "And So They Were Married." "Two in Revolt." Melvyn Douglas, Mary Astor, Edith Evans and Jackie Moran star in satirical wisecracks in the first film, the story of a young divorcee with a hatred for men and of a handsome widower who detests all women. Of course they meet under difficult circumstances and start calling each other names through most of the show. As the title suggests, the ending is in the best movie tradition. "Two in Revolt" is the colorful tale of a horse and a dog who are raised together on a Montana ranch. Together they do much for their master and there is plenty of shooting and fighting thrown in to make the picture interesting to western fans. John Arledge, Moroni Olsen, Louise Lattimer, Harry Jans and Emmet Vogan are featured.

Orpheum: Same.

Attack on Mt. Everest

Darjeeling, India, June 8 (AP).—Temporary slackening of "moonsoon weather" spurred Hugh Rutledge and his British expedition onward today in their attempt to reach the snow-capped top of Mount Everest.

Their path was filled with danger for, as the moonsoon which has been raging for weeks, abated, loosening snows brought fear of avalanches. The hardy climbers, however, made ready to remain until the "Devil Mountain" is finally conquered or they are declared defeated by the weather.

No more chinning, MADAM!

IT USED to be said of the Master Draper, head of an old-time dry goods store, that he stroked his chin knowingly when certain customers walked in. This was a sign to his assistant that they could probably be "shaved" . . . or given the worst of the bargain!

Today, walking in and buying the goods for a new dress is wholly without any such hazard. The fabric marked "wool" is just that. Pure silk is woven from the natural silkworm product. If the fabric is composed of one of the newer, man-made yarns, the type of rayon is usually named in a sign on the counter, or on the end of the bolt of cloth.

And the price you get out of the advertisement . . . no quibbling about that! You read before you shop, and buy just as much as the pattern-envelope calls for. Every day, now, there are especially good buys in dress goods. Have you looked at all the advertising pages today?

Closi Pioneers and Berardis Win, Kaslich and Hurons Nosed Out; Other Scores of Week-End Games

Results of games played on local diamonds and vicinity over the week-end:

Pioneers Rout Baumville
The Closi Pioneers, playing with their first regular lineup since the game with the Home Leaders, showed their fans that they still had some of the old punch left when they defeated the Baumville Independents from Newburgh by the score of 11-5. The winners routed two Newburgh hurlers from the box and garnered no less than 14 hits. Jimmie Uhl was tossing them over for the Pioneers and allowed but seven scattered bingles.

P. Crispell, the Closi lead off man, started at the plate with three hits, one a long double, and six stolen bases. Jim Steigerwald hit three out of four times and batted in three runs. A triple by P. Lenkie getting the little short stop in setting back to his 1935 form. Ralph Williams, returning to the Pioneer lineup after several weeks illness, played a spectacular game in the field and made a rousing catch to end the game. The Pioneers would like to book games with out of town, uniformed teams. Managers call 3600 or set in touch with Joe Colas, 61 E. Strand, Kingston. Open dates are June 21, July 5 and 19 for Haabrook Park and June 14, 28, July 12 and 26 for road games.

Berardi A. C. Beats Catskill
The Berardi A. C. scored six runs in the third inning of their game Sunday afternoon with the Catskill A. A. to take a commanding lead. From then on to the ninth they scored in every frame to take the game by the one sided count of 18-2. Cullen was on the mound for the A. C. and turned in a neat performance (fanning 12 A. A. men and allowing but nine hits, while his mates put Dykeman and Rocco freely.

Zedany started for the Berardis with a triple and two singles. Rocco, Brandt and Wisans hit two apiece for the A. A.

Stanton Brewers Divide Two.
The Stanton Brewers won one and lost one over the week-end. On Saturday afternoon at Napanoch they were nosed out by the insiders, 10-9, but turned the tables on the Modena Firemen Sunday to the tune of 11-2.

At Napanoch the Brewers were leading 7-1 going into the last half of the fourth but were unable to hold their lead.

Toffel was on the mound for the locals and although being nipped for 13 hits, struck out seven men. The Brewers outlived the Napanoch team 16-13. McElrath, Storski, Zapolnik and Stunder featured at the plate with home runs.

On Sunday at Modena the Brewers continued their heavy hitting and with Bud McLean making his first start on the mound, turned back the Firemen by 14-7.

Captain Walsh of the winners led the attack on two Modena pitchers with a double and three singles. McLean was next in line with three singles. Patridge started for the Firemen with a double and single.

The game was the second of a double header. In the first tilt the Modena Firemen defeated Stony Point by 14-7.

10 Inning Games Go to Haabrook.
Saturday afternoon at West Hurley the Kingston Baseballs defeated the West Hurley Fairways 5-7, in 10 innings.

Harold Bower pitched superbly for the Baseballs, striking out twenty-two batters while allowing only six hits. Overcoming an early lead, Baseballs' batter, led by Earl Maxwell, pushed the winning run across in the 10th inning.

Frederick's pitching as well as the hitting and fielding of Bob Maxwell were outstanding for the team.

Kaslich A. C. Nosed Out
The Kaslich A. C. was nosed out by a one run margin at Napanoch Sunday afternoon when they lost to the Napanoch Chevrolet 5-2.

Weinstein, a pitcher from New York, was on the mound for the Chevrolet and held the A. C. boys to four hits and fanned 12.

Burgin, a pitcher from New York, was on the mound for the Chevrolet and held the A. C. boys to four hits and fanned 12.

Tagging Major League Bases

Take it direct from Arky Vaughan, the National League batting crown won't be given up without a fight.

The heavy-hitter of the Pittsburgh Pirates is making that much clear by his stick-work these days.

Slow to start, Vaughan has come along fast at the plate in the last four weeks, has pulled up 38 percentage points in less than 21 days, and is now batting just a shade under the .300 mark.

Of course, that's still far off the .385 mark he posted last year to win the title. But consider his steady, uninterrupted rise since mid-May, while most of the leaders have been falling off sharply, now that the heat is on. Consider, also, that he has been hitting better than .385 since before June 1.

Vaughan hit his 19th straight game yesterday, getting three singles in five times up to set the pace as the Bucs collected 18 hits and clubbed the Phillies 6-2.

The victory left the Pirates just one percentage point off third place in the National League standings, since the Chicago Cubs nosed out the Phillies 4-3 behind Curt Davis' tight pitching to maintain their advantage.

The Cardinals continued to lead the pack, downing the second place New York Giants 6-3, as Dizzy Dean, the top big-league pitcher, chalked up his 11th victory, taking the mound with only 48 hours rest.

The New York Yankees, meantime, pulled their American League lead out of the fire and stretched it to 2½ games by outlasting the Cleveland Indians 5-4 in a 16-inning struggle, while the second place Boston Red Sox were losing their jinx hold on the Chicago White Sox and were getting snowed under a 16-hit attack, 13-5, to end their five-game winning streak.

The Detroit Tigers, hard-hit by injuries, but still fighting for their world's championship, replaced the Indians in third place by staying off the Senators' closing rally, through the able relief pitching of Royle Lawson in the ninth, to win 10-8.

The Boston Bees threw off the assault of the Cincinnati Reds on the National League's fifth place by coming through with an 8-3 triumph, while the St. Louis Browns downed the Athletics 9-5, to move within a game of sending Connie Mack's crew into the American League cellar.

Yesterday's Stars

By The Associated Press.
George Selkirk, Yanks—Hit homer in 16th inning to defeat Indians 5-4.

Dizzy Dean, Cardinals—With only two days' rest he pitched eight-hit ball to seven hits for 4-3 triumph.

Harland Cliff, Browns—His homer put Browns ahead in 9-5 victory over Athletics.

Hal Lee, Bees—Had two doubles and a triple, batting in five runs in 8-3 win over Reds.

Bill Keith, Pirates—Limited Phillies to seven hits for 4-2 triumph.

Mike Kreech, White Sox—Hit homer with bases loaded as Red Sox's five-game winning streak ended in 13-5 defeat.

Carl Davis, Cubs—Shot out Dodgers in series of nine innings to chalk up 4-2 win.

Rosie Lawson, Tigers—His ninth-inning relief pitching quelled Senators' rally as Tigers won 10-8.

K.H.S. Golfers Close Season Undefeated

By edging the Newburgh quartet of golfers by a 10-8 score Saturday at the Twaalfskill Club, Kingston brought its season to a close without suffering a single defeat. The Maroon and White will send representatives to the Hudson Valley Open meet to be held at Newburgh next Saturday.

Freddie Holcomb disposed of Newburgh's No. 1 man, Streit, to the tune of 3-0. Bert DeBrooky vanquished Dominic 2-1. Holcomb and DeBrooky combined to take over Streit and Dominic 3-0. Barney Murray had a bad day and lost to Patterson 2-0. Bob Cole finished the singles matches with a 2-1 victory over Staples. The combine of Staples and Patterson blanked Murray and Cole 5-0.

Medal scores—Holcomb 76, Streit 87, DeBrooky 85, Dominic 88, Cole 94, Patterson 93, Murray 98, Staples 100.

Grammar Schools to Decide Championship

The baseball came to decide the championship of the city grammar schools will be staged Tuesday afternoon at 4 o'clock at the Athletic Field when the teams of School No. 7 and School No. 2 will battle it out for the crown. Both teams have won an equal number of games and the game Tuesday will decide which team is the champion of the city grammar schools.

Amateur Boxing Bouts At Woodcliff Friday

Wild winning amateurs, picked from every nick and corner of the Mid-Hudson valley, resembling the old-time glory battles of four years ago, are coming back to the Woodcliff Park arena, Yonkersville, under the direction of Lafayette post.

With an arena from Packer's in Hudson to choose from in addition to several of the more important alumni purse of the metropolis including the Golden Glove, Inter-City and International championships, the Legion hopes to make amateur boxing one of the most successful summer athletic ventures in the Bridge City.

With the opening end of hope scheduled for next Friday night June 12, plans have already been started for the better afternoon card to be completed.

The Legion is booked up with Al Schlessinger, who successfully pro-

Manero Lowers Mark In Winning Open Golf

New York, June 8 (AP).—It's only fitting there should be something unique about Tony Manero, winner of the most unusual open championship in the history of the United States Golf Association.

Aside from the fact the North Carolina sharpshooter led the way in a devastating assault on par, Tony was the first player with a moustache to top the crown.

In the stirring stretch finish, 18 holes in 67, five under par for the Baltusrol Club links, for a grand total of 282 nipped luckless Harry Cooper at the wire by two strokes.

Manero's glittering 67 was one of thirty-eight par-cracking performances over a course which had virtually no rough at all.

All told, in approximately 460 rounds played during the three-day, 72-hole medal test, par was equalled or broken sixty-two times. There were 24 rounds at par; 15 at 71; 15 at 70; seven at 69 and Manero's great 67—one stroke short of Gene Sarazen's spectacular finishing 66 at Fresh Meadow four years ago.

Manero's 282 shaved four strokes from the previous American record of 286 set by Chick Evans in 1916, and matched 16 years later by Sarazen.

It also lowered by a stroke the British record of 283 held jointly by Sarazen, Henry Cotton and Alf Peery.

It was the second straight year a long shot came through to win the title. Sam Parks, a 50-to-1 shot, turned the trick last year. His total of 162 in the first two rounds failed to qualify him for the final 36-holes Saturday.

In nine previous open championships Tony's best showing was a tie for 19th place in the 1931 tournament.

Two Good Fights on Program for Tonight

New York, June 8 (AP).—A double barreled program is available for New York boxing fans tonight with John Henry Lewis, the light heavyweight champion from Arizona, and Pedro Montanez, the flashy Puerto Rican who is Tony Canzoneri's main hope for a profitable defense of his lightweight title this summer, as the main attractions.

Lewis, a busy batter these days, takes on John Anderson of Sweden in a ten round match at distant Dexter Park in Brooklyn while Montanez meets Frankie Klok, rugged San Franciscan, in a ten rounder at Dyckman Oval in the upper reaches of Manhattan.

For the negro titleholder it is the second overweight fight here within two weeks. He stopped Bob Godwin of Daytona Beach, Fla., in one round at Madison Square Garden May 29. He is not expected to have any serious trouble disposing of Anderson, a favorite at the Brooklyn arena.

Montanez, a tireless little fellow who has made himself highly popular with the customers, goes after his 16th consecutive victory. He is rated a favorite at about 9 to 5 and needs a victory in order to make that proposed shot at Canzoneri's crown a certainty.

Somebody laughs at the sign, "Drinks and Beer," and yet says "wine and liquor" without cracking a smile.

LOOK OUT!
BLOW-OUT THROWS CAR OUT OF CONTROL

BANG! It happened in a split second. He couldn't steer. He couldn't stop. The car dove off the road. It doesn't pay to take chances on blow-outs. Equip your car now with a set of Goodrich Safety Silverstone Tires—the only tires in the world built with the Life-Saver Golden Ply. By resisting the terrific heat generated inside the tire by today's high speeds, the Golden Ply keeps blisters from forming. And when you prevent the blister, you prevent the high-speed blow-out.

Why not have this extra safety for your family—especially when Silverstone tires cost no more than other standard tires. That blister—that blow-out in the making—may be in one of your tires right now. Take it out today and have your tires inspected free.

Ward Tongue Was a Busy Man Last Week

Ward Tongue, the genial secretary of Mayor C. J. Heiselman, was one of the men who probably did as much if not more than any other man in Kingston to make the State Mayors' Conference last week the success it proved to be. Mr. Tongue for several weeks before the holding of the convention was in full charge of the registration of delegates and assigning them to their hotel quarters during their stay in Kingston.

During the days that the convention was in session Mr. Tongue had a desk at the Governor Clinton Hotel, and saw to it that every delegate was assigned to a room, and also kept them informed as to the various social functions that were held in connection with the convention. Just how many hours Mr. Tongue put in on his duties is known only to himself, but there was no one who attended the convention but did not know that he was on the job early in the morning and was on the job until late in the night.

Anyone who has an idea that staging a big convention like that of last week was a cinch job should talk it over with Mr. Tongue or Mayor Heiselman, and then they will realize what a big job it is and of the vast amount of work that goes on behind the scenes of which the general public is not aware.

Breckinridge, Anti-F. D. R., Battles A Former Colleague

By CHARLES NORMAN

New York (AP)—When young Franklin D. Roosevelt of New York became assistant secretary of the navy in President Wilson's "cabinet of young men," 27-year-old Henry Breckinridge, of an illustrious Kentucky family, became assistant secretary of war.

Today, one of those young assistant secretaries is President of the United States; the other is his declared foe, a stern critic of his New Deal, and a candidate for the Democratic presidential nomination.

It is said Colonel Breckinridge has no thought of capturing the nomination from President Roosevelt—that his plan is to rally behind him voters dissatisfied with the present administration.

Spotlighted in 1910

This does not mark his first move to oppose the New Deal, nor is it the first fight, political or otherwise, in which he has been a participant. Two years ago he announced his candidacy for the senate on the "Constitutional party" ticket in New York, but was submerged in the torrent of Democratic votes.

In 1916 he was the center of a political tempest when a professor alleged Breckinridge told him President Wilson had penned an ameliorating postscript to his strong note to the Imperial German government over the Lusitania.

According to the story, the postscript was withdrawn when several cabinet members threatened to resign. Breckinridge denied the story and supported Wilson for re-election.

Supported Hoover

Although a Democrat, he supported Herbert Hoover for President in 1928.

He became legal adviser to Colonel Charles A. Lindbergh after the latter's solo flight to Paris in 1927.

HENRY BRECKINRIDGE

Through the trying months after the kidnapping of the flier's first-born son Breckinridge was constantly by his side. He holds a pilot's license of his own.

Educated at Princeton and Harvard law school, he practiced law at Lexington, Ky., before removing to New York via Washington.

He is an expert fencer. Despite the pressure of his business and politics, he finds time for many activities of a civic and philanthropic nature.

He was born May 25, 1888. His grandfather, the Rev. Robert J. Breckinridge, presided at the national Republican convention which nominated Abraham Lincoln.

MARKET FOR FRUITS AND VEGETABLES

New York, June 8 (AP) (State Dept. of Agr. and Markets)—New Jersey's first offering of 1936 crop of white cabbage appeared on the New York wholesale district this morning. The cabbage was of the Copenhagen variety, was of good quality and size, and attractively packed, and jobbed out at $2.50 per six peck hamper. The tone of the cabbage market this morning was generally stronger. Supplies were moderate and the demand fairly active. White cabbage of various varieties in six peck hampers from Virginia and Maryland brought $1.50-$2.00, occasionally as high as $2.25 for the very finest, and poor and small stock sold down to $1.00-$1.25. Cabbage was also available from Louisiana, Mississippi, Tennessee.

The strawberry market was slightly weaker. Hudson Valley strawberries of various varieties in quart baskets 15c-20c, some good quality from 10c-14c.

The first offerings of Hudson Valley early varieties sweet cherries and gooseberries appeared on the market today. The gooseberries were of fair size and quality and wholesaled principally at 15c per quart basket. The sweet cherries were packed in four-quart clam baskets, and realized 75c.

The demand for big Boston lettuce was less active. Orange county, N. Y. crates of two dozen heads of the big Boston variety $1.50-$2.25.

Old and new crop potatoes were light. Old crop Maine 100-lb. sacks Green Mt. potatoes, U. S. No. 1, $4.25-$4.40, occasionally $4.50.

The tone of the apple market was about steady. Supplies and demand however, were light. New York Baldwin apples, N. Y. U. S. grade No. 1, 2 1/2 inch min. and upward brought $1.00-$1.37 1/2 per bushel basket or open box, depending upon quality. McIntosh No. 1, 2 1/2 inch, $1.25-$1.50. Northern Spy No. 1, 2 1/2 inch min. and upward $1.50-$1.75. Rome Beauty, No. 1, 2 1/2 inch minimum and upward, brought $1.35-$1.40, and miscellaneous varieties No. 1, 2 1/2 inch min. and upward, 7c-$1.25.

Western New York carrot supplies were rather light. The demand was slow in a continued inactive market. Topped, unwashed carrots in 100-lb. sacks, $1.25-$1.40, and washed in bushel baskets, 75c-$1.00.

Nine Arrests Made Here Over Week-end

Several Arrests Made For Street Fighting—Others For Public Intoxication and Disorderly Charges—One Arrest For Traffic Violation.

Theodore Leskie of 122 Newkirk avenue, Paul Stokes of 29 East Union street, and Frank Klonoski of 771 Broadway, were arrested early Sunday morning for staging a street fight on lower Hasbrouck avenue. This morning all three pleaded guilty and were fined $10 each.

Clyde Sims of 114 1/2 North Front street was arrested Saturday night by his wife, who charged her husband with disorderly conduct. This morning the wife failed to appear to press the charge in police court and Sims was discharged for lack of prosecution.

Daniel Collins of this city arrested on a charge of disorderly conduct on Wall street was sentenced to 10 days in jail.

James Tobin of Buffalo arrested Saturday for public intoxication on North Front street, was fined $5.

Rae Weisberg of 11 Linderman avenue, arrested for parking her car on a crosswalk, had her hearing held open until later.

John Bush of 108 North Front street, arrested for public intoxication on Converse street, was fined $3.

Saturday evening Clifford Cole of Sawkill paid a social call at the home of his sister, Mrs. George Every, on Murphy street and what followed his visit led to his being arrested by his brother-in-law and turned over to the police on a charge of disorderly conduct. His sister, Mrs. Every, appeared in court today to press the charge, but her brother pleaded guilty and was sentenced to 10 days in jail. Mrs. Every said her brother hit her in the arm and also threatened her husband.

Your refrigerator should be kept scrupulously clean at all times, but especially in the summer. Use a good pure soap and plenty of hot water. True, the hot water will raise the temperature of the box temporarily, but remember that a dirty refrigerator is a source of contamination of food that is responsible for many cases of food poisoning, or more properly speaking, food infection.

30 Persons Killed.
Bucharest, Rumania, June 8 (AP)—Thirty persons were killed and at least 150 injured when a grandstand collapsed today during a Boy Scout review before King Carol. Most of the injured persons were mothers and other relatives of the boys on parade. Police counted 30, dead after a hasty investigation and said that first estimates of the number hurt would probably be exceeded. King Carol rushed from his reviewing platform to aid in removing the injured from the wreckage.

Grenfell Assoc. Tea on Thursday

The Grenfell Association of America will hold a tea on the lawn of the Governor Clinton Hotel on Thursday afternoon from 4 to 6:30 o'clock. The occasion will be to aid the great life work of Dr. Grenfell, one of the greatest exponents of Christian Charity in the world. The tea is being sponsored by men and women in the country known for their desire to help righteous causes. The public is cordially invited to attend and there are expected to be present many interesting and well known persons.

Dr. Grenfell is known for his fine work with the sick and suffering of Labrador and the northeast shore of America.

There will be a short address by Miss Eleanor Cushman, long identified with the work of Sir Wilfred. Should it rain the tea will be held in the hotel.

The management take pleasure in announcing the following additional sponsors:

Col. and Mrs. Girard L. McEntee, Saugerties; Miss Eleanor Easton, Kingston; Mrs. Carl V. Van Anden, Nanuet; Mrs. Herbert J. Gunnison, High Mount; Mrs. Karl Connell, Denning; Miss Madeline Woerner, Kingston.

Dr. Townsend, announcing that he's "going to capture the United States government," reminds us of the wrestler who boasted of throwing the other fellow "violently on top of him."

Investigating Two Burglaries Here

State troopers and deputy sheriffs today were investigating two burglaries that took place over the week-end, both in gasoline filling stations, one of which was "touched" for about $150.

This morning at 8:10 o'clock, Harold Mower reported to the sheriff's office that his station on the Plank Road had been broken into some time between 11 last night and 7 o'clock this morning. Entry being gained through a window that had been forced open. He said about $150 was stolen, about $20 of the amount being in charge.

Ray Elmendorf, who operates a filling station on the Hurley road, reported that his place had been robbed some time last night. He did not state the amount of goods or money stolen, when making the report.

Although no "hot" clues were left by the burglars, the state troopers and sheriff's deputies are investigating and hope to run down the thief or thieves shortly.

Railroad bonds are widely distributed among general investors, but insurance companies, savings banks, colleges, and other institutions have long been large investors in this kind of securities. When many of the railroads ceased to be able to pay their interest charges, the effect was harmful to the whole country. Moreover, the railroads are among the largest supporters of the heavy industries, such as steel, lumber, and coal, where millions of Americans find employment.

IF THERE IS A

in the electrical system of your car it will not have the power that it should have.

If there is a "short" or pressure on a nerve, the brain cannot get the full amount of life force over it and the part of the body which that nerve supplies, is bound to become weakened and diseased.

Most diseases are due to misaligned vertebrae producing pressure on nerves at the point where they branch off from the spine. Let me explain how relieve this pressure and health is restored.
